VOL. XVII. NO. 157. TOLEDO, OHIO, TUESDAY, OCTOBER 18, 1892. LAST EDITION. TWO CENTS.

IN THE BEE TO-DAY

WEATHER.

Toledo, O., Oct. 18, 1892.

The storm central over northern Minnesota yesterday morning has been drawn northward, and it has left a narrow through of low barometric pressure that extends from Canada to the lower Mississippi valley. As this low area moves to the north and east it will cause rains and high winds over some of the lakes.

There is an area of high barometric covering the states on the Atlantic coast, which has and will cause continued fair weather in those states to-day. A second high area is central over Colorado, moving eastward, which is causing the weather to clear over that section of the country.

The temperature has fallen from 10 to 40 degrees over Colorado, Wyoming, Nebraska, Iowa, North and South Dakota, Wisconsin and Minnesota. It has risen over the lake region, and remained stationary in all other states. A decided fall will occur over the states east of the Mississippi river during the next 36 hours, and west of it the change will be slight.

During the past 24 hours rains have fallen in Michigan, Wisconsin, New York, Missouri, Minnesota, Illinois, Nebraska, Iowa and along the boarder of the United States. Conditions are favorbale for showers over the lake region by to-night.

Local forecast for Toledo and vicinity: On Tuesday, fair, followed by rain to-night, slight change in temperature. On Wednesday, clearing and colder weather.

Get rid of it, if you have Catarrh. Don't merely relieve it for a time with poisonous, irritating snuffs and strong caustic solutions. While you seem to be getting help, you may be getting harm. Stopped in this way, it's usually only driven to the lungs. You're worse off than ever.

But you can get rid of it completely, with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. That's been proved over and over again, in thousands of the most hopeless cases. By its mild, soothing, cleansing and healing properties, Catarrh in the Head and all Catarrhal affections are perfectly and permantly cured.

Some physicians will tell you that Catarrh can't be cured, They mean that they can't cure it. Dr. Sage's Remedy can. And to prove that they believe it, the proprietors of this medicine will pay $500 for an incurable case of Catarrh. They don't see one often, but they'll pay the money when they do.

LET HER GO!

Chicago Is Ready for the Start,

And the Whole World Is Waiting for It.

Decorations Beyond the Belief of Man

Will Greet Visitors to the Windy City.

Homely Old Buildings Transformed in a Night Into the Most Beautiful Spectacle the Eye Has Ever Seen.

Chicago, Oct. 18.—Only a few more finishing touches, only a few more blocks to decorate and then Chicago will be dressed in her best suit of clothes in honor of the coming festivities.

Millions of flags began yesterday to practice the welcoming they are meant to flutter to all the good people who are coming to celebrate the dedication of the big fair.

The people wondered at the myriads of bright little banners dancing in the sunlight yesterday. They had been put in position during the night. The banners represented every spot under the sky. The stars and stripes, of course, was everywhere, and particularly on the highest flagstaffs.

In the decorations compliments are paid to all the nations of the earth and to some lands that once were nations and have a notion of being nations again, but the stars and stripes are everywhere in the place of honor, away up at the top.

Chicago looked yesterday like a brand new town. The transformation from the day before was extraordinary. Business houses that on Sunday looked dull and gloomy were turned as if by magic into bright beauty spots, resplendent with rainbow coloring.

Many store proprietors were holding back, fearful of the weather. A good deal of the stuff used in decorating is not very fast in the matter of color and a rainstorm would well nigh destroy it. But yesterday's sunshine reassured the managers, and in an hour after dawn thousands of men were spreading streamers from point to point, wrapping columns with terra cotta, catching up frills and flounces and festoons, putting shields in place and planting high over all the banner of the nation.

This is particularly true of the route to be covered by the great parade. Still the decorations are by no means confined to the line of march. The less favored thoroughfares are vieing with each other in producing happy effects.

The national celebration of the discovery of this continent is close at hand, and the strangers are beginning to pour within the gates of the Garden City. The task of decorating was commenced as if with one accord this morning both in the business and residence districts, and within 24 hours Chicago will be literally wreathed in bunting.

Beautiful Michigan avenue was already by noon to-day a panorama of brilliant colors. Streamers waved from every house-top, flags draped the windows, and banners stretched from house to house. In the business district, despite the adoption of terra-cotta, with its liver-hued aspect as the municipal colors, there is plenty of the red, white and blue. Bunting is stretched from window to window, and from the corners of the entrance porticoes to the eaves of the buildings. There is a plentiful display of American shields.

One large business house displays a typical figure of Chicago standing on a red, white and blue globe, and which is draped with the national colors.

Banners inscribed with the emblems and insignias of all the various societies that will take part in the parade, and flags of all nations are displayed from the windows.

One of the most strikingly beautiful designs is that displayed over the State street entrance. From this are draped along the lower floors immense festoons of bunting.

At the top and center of the building are golden American eagles, from which the draperies of the upper floors are suspended. These reach each window in the block, where they are caught up with knots of various colored bunting. Strings of flags are stretched along the face of the building, and from flag staffs on the roof scores of tri-colored donfalons float in the breeze.

Everything is in readiness at the hotels for the reception of the distinguished guests who will begin to pour in this evening.

The Turkish commissioners, Hauki Bey and Fahri Bey, with Hon. Arthur Resnick, the executive commissioner from Australia, are the first on the ground, having arrived this morning. They are quartered at the Auditorium. Gov. H. H. Markham and staff will arrive from San Francisco this afternoon.

Down at the world's fair grounds a small army of employes are giving the finishing touches to the arrangements for receiving and entertaining the 150,000 guests that are expected to witness the dedication ceremonies on Friday. The celebration opens to-morrow with appropriate exercises in the public schools.

The national world's fair commission and the national board of lady managers assembled here to-day preparatory to the coming celebration. The national commission is to be asked by the National Temperance society to veto the contract made by the local management for the sale of liquors at the fair, on the ground that the contract is a plain violation of two liquor laws of Illinois, as well as of the national charter. It is not thought, however, that the demand will be conceded.

STREET CAR ACCIDENT.

Two Electrics Meet Head On at Full Speed.

Schenectady, N. Y., Oct. 18—Another serious accident occurred on the electric street railway in this city. Car No. 8 being late, was endeavoring to make up so as to pass car No. 6 at the regular switch. Car No. 6 had waited at the switch two minutes and then proceeded toward the next switch. The cars met at a curve and struck with such force that the recoil sent them 50 feet apart. Several of the passengers were injured, the most severe injuries being sustained by Mrs. A. M. Vedder and Mrs. Frank Murray. Both may died. This is the fourth accident that has occurred on the road since Saturday evening.

BLAZE IN CHICAGO.

Half a Million Dollars Go Up in Smoke.

The Kent Hotel Was in the Flames.

The Daughter of the Proprietor Jumps From a Third Story Window and Is Picked Up a Corpse.

Chicago, Oct. 18.—Fire that broke out at 4 o'clock this morning in Englewood, a suburb of this city, did damage to the extent of half a million dollars.

One woman was killed by jumping from a third-story window in a hotel.

Bodies of some of the guests are supposed to be still under the debris. Those who escaped did so in their night robes and had close calls at that.

Strong winds carried the flames to a house a block away, which so alarmed the people living between the two fires that about 20 families moved out into the street.

A dozen more are homeless, and the charity of the people has an opportunity to display itself.

Firemen battled manfully for hours to confine the flames within the block, but could not prevent damage to adjacent buildings from the intense heat.

The half of the block south of Sixty-third street, between Wright and Honore, was made up, for the most part, of frame buildings. Four brick structures only were in the row. The corner at Sixty-third and Honore was occupied by a frame structure. The next four were the brick ones and the rest of the block had frame buildings. It now has nothing but ruins, four brick walls being the only thing left standing. The first of the brick buildings was occupied by a paint store, and it was in this that the fire originated. It is supposed to have been started by spontaneous combustion of the oils. At any rate the oils furnished abundant fuel and added fierceness to the fire.

Above the paint store and the next building, occupying the second and third stories, was the Kent hotel. It had about 30 rooms and no less than 25 guests were there last night.

There was an unusually strong wind blowing and the fire was fanned so fiercely that the first warning the people in the house had was the snapping of the glass in their windows.

There was no time to save anything. Men dashed for the doors and women shrieked.

Miss Kent, aged about 20 years, daughter of the proprietor of the hotel, occupied a room on the third floor. She was awakened by the dense smoke. She found the halls filled and turned toward the window. In her night robe she leaned out and appealed for help. In the grey dawn she was a most pitiable looking sight.

Firemen and policemen below shouted to her not to jump, but she either did not hear or she misunderstood them. She threw herself headlong and fell on the pavement. Her head struck first and she was picked up a corpse.

Other people in the hotel went down the stairs, but it is feared all did not get out. Not more than two or three had time to dress. Nearly all were more or less affected by the heat, one man's full beard being burned to his face. From the hotel the flames communicated rapidly to each successive building along the street. They spread so quickly that almost no furniture was saved.

Flames were reaching nearly across the street and the firemen turned their attention to the opposite buildings in which the heat had broken all the glass. It looked like the whole town was going and about this time the sparks had lodged in the roof of a building on Sixty-second street. That spread the alarm and about 20 families living between the two fires moved into the street.

Fourteen engines and three trucks are still on the grounds. Trains were delayed until the fire was sufficiently under control to allow the firemen time to get the house under the tracks.

The insurance will not come anywhere near covering the damage. The brick buildings were insured, but many of the frame ones had no insurance. A conservative estimate places the loss at $500,000.

HENRY WATTERSON.

He Will Make a Grand Effort at Chicago on Friday.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 18.—The Hon. Henry Watterson, editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, and dedicatory orator of the world's fair, yesterday gave out the anticipatory text of his coming address to be dilivered in Chicago on Friday of this week.

The orator takes as his text "The Miracle of American Civilization and Development."

It makes about 3,500 words, or will fill about three ordinary newspaper columns. It will be one of the most brilliant efforts of his life; a most finished production notwithstanding the scant notice he was allowed for its preparation.

THREE KILLED.

Fatal Accident on the Lehigh Road.

Waverly, N. Y., Oct. 18.—Three men lost their lives this morning in a railroad wreck at the highway crossing near Scott's coal yard, a short distance from this place, on the Lehigh railroad.

Engineer Patrick Laven was standing with his engine on the frog when a yard engine in charge of John Gorman came up the main line with a box car in front, and smashed into Laven's engine. Laven and his fireman were killed, and Edward Passmore, a brakeman, was struck by a caboose and killed.

WON THE RACE.

Bucyrus, O., Oct. 18.—G. C. Souden, of Findlay, beat Addie Heckermire, of Upper Sandusky, in a 100-yard foot race here to-day for a purse of $100. Time, 10 3-4 seconds.

SHOT THEM TO DEATH

Eight Horse Thieves Will Steal No More.

Desperate Battle Reported in Idaho.

The Posse Showed No Mercy and Left None Alive to Argue the Case in the Future.

Boise, Ida., Oct. 18.—Wilson Marvin, just in from Deer Flat, in the northern portion of Idaho, has given Deputy Sheriff Lorton, of Emmit, details of a battle that resulted in the complete obliteration of a large gang of horse thieves, who had long been a source of great loss to farmers and stockmen.

The outlaws had stolen several hundred head of horses, which they had run into British Columbia, and thence into the eastern provinces of Canada or into the Atlantic states, and the owners of the stock were frenzied with chagrin and rage.

Early in August a large posse went out in search of the thieves, who had returned to the Samas Prairie country, and were operating with the utmost boldness.

The posse was absent about a fortnight. The posse reached home bearing the marks of a hard campaign. Some of the men bore wounds of a peculiar character, but they did not have much to say concerning their trip and no one questioned them.

Marvin asserts that he witnessed a battle near Deer Flat between rustlers and the posse on the afternoon of August 12. The thieves had unsaddled their horses at a spring at the head of a shallow basin about a quarter of a mile in diameter. They numbered eight, were well mounted and heavily armed, and had with them about a dozen fine horses which they had stolen from various farmers.

The rustlers were cooking their dinners when the posse came up and surprised them. Finding themselves surrounded, the thieves shot five or six of the stolen horses and, entrenched between the breastworks of quivering flesh, made a stubborn resistance. The bullets of the posse ended the existence of the saddle animals of the rustlers and wounded some of the thieves, but the fact that they had been deprived of all hope of escape only made them fight more desperately.

The shooting was all at long range, and after an hour's battle no fatalities save to the horses had resulted. The posse then drew off and held a consultation, after which a majority of the pursuers ranged themselves in a long line about a mile to the leeward of the thieves. Then the few men left on the windward side set the prairie grass afire.

The hunted men started for a distant gulch in an attempt to escape the double danger that threatened them. Three of their number were wounded those of the other rustlers left to perish. The rustlers dropped everything except their rifles, ran toward a ravine, firing as they went, but were shot down before they had gone 1,000 yards. The prairie fire did not destroy the wounded rustlers left at the spring, though it singed off their hair, beards and eyebrows, and burned their faces and hands very badly. They begged piteously to be allowed to die in peace, but they, together with the bodies of their six dead companions, were strung to the limbs of a big tree and allowed to remain there to become the prey of buzzards.

ACTED AS OF OLD.

Abraham and Isaac Played in the Pen.

Wm. Ferreter Thought He Would Like to Sacrifice the Chaplain.

Columbus, O., Oct. 18.—Wm. Ferreter, a convict in the state penitentiary, suddenly appeared last evening in the study of the Rev. W. R. Dudley, chaplain of the institution, and told him the Lord had commanded him to offer up the chaplain as a sacrifice, as Abraham attempted to offer up Isaac.

The chance arrival of a guard in the study probably saved the chaplain's life, as Ferreter had a knife which he was about to use as a weapon.

Ferreter's insanity was sudden and came from religious excitement. He became so violent when seized by the guard that he died in a few hours in spite of the efforts of the prison physicians.

WORDS THAT BURN

Oak Harbor Democracy Greets Byron Ritchie.

He Makes a Speech Full of Logic, Wit and Humor.

L. C. Cole Makes a Rattling and Sensational Address.

A Brass Band and Torch-Light Procession Greeting.

Rousing Welcome, An Immense Audience and Speeches That Have the Right Ring.

Oak Harbor, Oct. 18.—(Special)—It was an outpouring of the people, an uprising of the masses.

Right royal and hearty was the welcome that greeted Byron F. Ritchie and his Toledo and Wood county friends upon their arrival here last night.

They were met at the depot by brass bands and an immense torchlight procession escorted the next congressman from this district to the town hall, where he delivered a speech that fired the blood of the great audience like new wine.

An attempt was made to have the meeting held in the open air, as it was known the hall would not hold one half of those who desired to see and hear Mr. Ritchie. The weather was chilly and those in charge decided to have it in the hall.

Large contingents were present from Port Clinton, Welleston, Elmore, Genoa, Trowbridge and other places.

Mr. C. I. York called the meeting to order, and after discussing in a rattling good speech the chief issues of the day, introduced Mr. B. F. Ritchie.

Mr. Ritchie, who was received with enthusiastic cheering, spoke substantially as follows:

Mr. Chairman, Fellow Citizens of Oak Harbor:

On the 4th day of October at Bowling Green, O., the democracy of the Ninth congressional district, in convention assembled, nominated as its candidate for congress a plain, blunt and exceedingly modest young man, in the person of your humble servant. That nomination was unsought and unbought. Not a single man beneath God's bending sky was asked by me for his support, and not a single cent was spent therefor. I then thought, and now think, that a wiser nomination might have been made for I am untutored in political ways. (Laughter.) I have never desired official station, and never sought political preferment. It has always been my ambition to serve in the ranks; to help protect the banner of democracy, rather than to carry it; to follow, rather than to lead; to assist others rather than myself. (Cheers.) Whether the action of that convention was wise or unwise, is now too late to question. I accepted that nomination, with a determination to win, if I honorably could, and win, I honorably can, if I have the party's cordial, united and enthusiastic support. (Cheers.)

True, the district is greatly republican, and true I have a great opponent. He is great in respectability and great in wealth. (Laughter.) He was in congress for a great many years, and was turned out for a great many more. He was governor of a great territory and was deposed therefrom in a great hurry by a great man. He is the great president of a great corporation. He lives a great part of the time in the great city of New York. He has belonged to a great many political parties and may belong to a great many more. (Cheers.) He was the great emancipator, as he says. He was the great friend of the great and martyred Lincoln, although he does not claim to have been such a great friend of the great Grant. (Cheers.) Two years ago he secured the nomination for congress with a great hurrah, but notwithstanding his great barrel and its great bung-hole (laughter) he was defeated by a great majority. (Laughter and cheers.) He has great ideas. I am told however, that the greatest of these is of himself. Fellow citizens, honestly, the greatness of his greatness overcomes me like a summer's cloud. (Laughter.) After my return home from the convention some of my friends asked me to challenge the honorable gentleman to joint debate, and after mature deliberation, with a trembling hand, I penned and sent to the chairman of our committee this communication:

Toledo, O., Oct. 18, 1892.

Hon. D. H. Commager, Chairman Democratic Executive Committee, Lucas County, O.:

Dear Sir: Will you kindly see if an arrangement can be made with the republican executive committee of this county, whereby Hon. J. M. Ashley, republican candidate for congress, and myself, may be allowed to meet once in each county in this district for a joint discussion of the issues now before the public.

Very Respectfully,

BYRON F. RITCHIE.

Judge Commager immediately forwarded to the chairman of the republican committee this:

Toledo, O., Oct. 10, 1892.

Mr. James H. Southard, Chairman Republican Executive Committee, Lucas County, O.!

Dear sir: A letter, a copy of which is added hereto, was handed me this day. Will you at your earliest convenience, enter into arrangements with me to carry out this request, Respectfully your,

D. H. COMMAGER,

Ch'n Dem. Ex. Com., Lucas Co., O.

Oh, gentlemen, the fear that then possessed me! Had I signed my own political death warrant? Was I to be annihilated? Ripped up the back as it were? The thought followed me like a shadow. Sleepless were the nights I passed. I consoled myself, however, with the thought that as I had always been a democrat, he would be kind to me for "auld lang syne." Another thought lifted my drooping spirits, and cheered my timid heart. We had stood upon the same platform before, the stable platform of genuine democracy.

Fortune favors the brave. In a few days came these pleasant tidings:

Toledo, O., Oct. 14, 1892.

Hon. D. H. Commager, Chairman Democratic Executive Committee:

Dear sir: In answer to yours of the 10th inst., will say that the proposition for a joint political discussion between the candidates for congress in this district is respectfully declined.

J. H. SOUTHARD,

Chairman Campaign Com., Lucas Co., O.

(Cheers.) And so I am the only democratic candidate for congress in this district who appears here to-night. I feel that I am safe. Governor Ashley is billed for his speech in Fulton county to-night. But he has been known to change in several things and several times. He might change his route and come here to-night, and so I have brought Brothers Cole and York along with me as a sort of a "protection to infant industries" as it were. (Cheers and laughter.)

In 1874, at Napoleon, O., the democracy of this district nominated as its candidate for congress that Napoleon of the Ohio democracy, that peerless democrat, the Hon. Frank H. Hurd, of Toledo. In that convention the Hon. J. M. Ashley was a candidate, of his own volition. We chose Mr. Hurd as our leader because he was bold, fearless and sincere. Had that decision been, otherwise, and Mr. Ashley nominated, who for a moment doubts that his political complexion would have been also otherwise, to-day, from what he claims it is. Democracy was the same then as now. It was in favor of tariff reform. It opposed oppression by the rich. It was the champion of the poor. If the gentleman was then sincere, is he sincere now? If he was a democrat then, why is he a republican now? (Cheers.)

Gentlemen, stability of judgment and of thought, absolute sincerity and consistency, in politics and out of politics, are the chief jewels in the crown of honest manhood. Democrats, can you support for congress a gentleman who is now false to your political faith? Republicans, can you support for congress a gentleman who has been false for years? (Cheers.)

Fellow citizens, as there are other speakers to address you to-night, I shall not enter into any very extended discussion of the issues before the people. Those issues are vital, and their correct decision by our countrymen important to the peace and prosperity of us all.

Between the parties, they are sharp and well defined. The republican party seeks to avoid their discussion, but seek in vain, by a cry of "wildcat banks and worthless money."

Give us first relief from unjust taxation; give the toiling people just a chance to save their money; give them first some money to deposit, and afterwards we can discuss the place of that deposit to our hearts' content. (Cheers).

One of the chief issues between the parties is the federal election of force bill, so-called, which seeks to place our congressional elections under the control of federal supervisors. I hold a copy of that bill in my hand. It's adoption is advocated by the republican party in its platform, and by President Harrison in his letter of acceptance. It provides for the appointment of federal supervisors without limit, at an expense which is enormous, to oversee your voting and mine. Purity of the ballot box is its pretended purpose—retention of the dominant party in power is its only object. Democracy is opposed to this measure. We believe that in a free government force and freedom are incompatible. The idea of federal supervision over our elections is a foe to good government. It is a menace to the liberty of the citizen. It questions the power of the people to govern themselves, and still be free. It places in the hands of a few the power to stifle the wish of the many. Our present state election laws are good enough for us, but too good for them. Democracy is the friend of the Australian ballot, and the Australian ballot is the friend of democracy—as the recent elections in Vermont and Maine will testify. (Cheers). It gives to the employed the right to vote as he pleases, without dictate from the employer. It does away with bribery, coercion and force, and wipes out the possibility of "blocks of five." It affords an honest ballot and a fair count, it allows the wish of the majority to rule—and with that democracy is content. (Cheers).

In this campaign, overshadowing all others as an issue, is the tariff, and "Tariff Reform" is the battle cry of the democratic party. Our government is great and its expenses large. The soldier pensioner should be promptly and liberally paid, for it is the duty of the government to be kind to those who were kind to it. Revenue is therefore necessary, and a tariff for revenue is just. Willingly will the citizen pay to the government his share of the expense of its administration, economically administered. Less than this the government cannot ask, and more it should not demand. It has no right to tax Peter to enrich Paul. (Great cheers).

The republican party for years, in its political platforms, has promised a reduction of the tariff.

President Grant advised it; the Arthur commission recommended it, and the illustrious Garfield favored a tariff which would lead ultimately to free trade. But the republican party is now pledged to a high protective tariff, and the McKinley tariff law is its standard. The tariff is a tax. If it is not a tax, what is it? I heard the joint debate at Ada, O., between Governor Campbell and McKinley. Mr. McKinley claimed that the tariff was not a tax, and that it was paid by the foreigner. Let me ask my distinguished competitor, Governor Ashley, at long range, if the tariff is not a tax, how does it produce revenue? If it does not produce revenue, what necessity for a tariff? If it is paid by the foreigner, how does it produce revenue here? If it is not a tax, why does its removal from a commodity—sugar, quinine, etc.—immediately lower the cost to the consumer? (Cries of "That's it.")

They claim for high protective tariff that it protects American labor, and increases the wages of the artisan, but it is the song of the siren. If the tariff fixes wages here, it fixes them wherever the tariff is. In Germany and France the tariff is far higher than here. How is it with wages? Lower, much lower than here and far lower than in England.

If a high tariff makes high wages, why won't a higher tariff make higher wages? Then let us strengthen the McKinley bill a little, let us double the tariff, and thus double the wages of the laborer, for a new principle of political economy has been discovered—the more you tax a man, the richer he becomes—the more you take away from him, the more he has left.

The McKinley bill proceeds upon the theory that "to him that hath shall be given, and to him that hath not shall be taken even that which he hath." If protection has ought to do with wages, why are wages highest in industries that are unprotected? If protection has ought to do with wages, why, throughout America, are wages not alike in industries that are akin. Why, in like occupations, are wages different in New York and in San Francisco?

Wages depend upon the law of supply and demand. The more extended the market the greater the opportunity for sales. The greater the sales the more the necessity of manufacture; the greater the manufacture, the greater the demand for labor; the greater the demand for labor, the higher will be the wages of the laborer.

Ten ounces of protection to the American laborer at Castle Garden, by restricting pauper emigration, will benefit him more than a ton of McKinley bills. (Cheers.)

Some time since, on Labor Day, I stood on the streets in Toledo. I saw thousands of sturdy sons of toil in grand parade. The flags of health were flying in their cheeks, and the flags of their respective labor unions were floating in the air. I read upon a banner, "In union there is strength," and then I knew that wages were high in America, because the laborer had the courage and the manhood to demand it, and that American labor was protected, because it protected itself.

I see Governor Ashley has not yet arrived. He claims to have been Lincoln's friend. It is to his credit if he was. It is true, he had a good friend, if Lincoln didn't. But I want to say to Mr. Ashley to-night, before I quit, that this is not a campaign of sentiment. It is not a question of whose friend he then was, but of whose friend he now is. Not a question whether he was the friend of the black slave then, but whether he is the friend of the slave of toil to-day. No matter what his answer may be, for true answer, go to the men who built his road, who were paid in scrip, go to the farms his road runs through; go to his present employes, as I have; go to the men he has blacklisted and listen to their tale of woe, and then, for yourselves decide. (Applause.)

Governor Ashley had printed in the Toledo Blade of October 15, a three column article, on "federation of railroads and wage workers." It is beautiful theory and deserves a patent. It winds up with a dash at poetry. Listen to his song:

He says to the wageworker: "If you acquit yourself like men, and with fraternal duty consecrate your daily toil you cannot be defeated. On such a platform you have but to

"Stand firm and all the world will see
Your light shone out o'er land and sea."

Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment to his poetry, which I wish to submit to the wage-workers of this district. It is:

"Stand firm, and all the world shall see
His light go out on the raging Maumee."

One thing more, my friends. I do not believe that any foreigner who comes to our land with the purpose of becoming a worthy citizen, should be compelled to live here for 21 years before he is allowed that right. And further: If our government has the right to take the humblest citizen of the land, and force him into the field of battle to sustain the integrity of the Union, and the supremacy of its flag of stars, it has no right to prescribe any test for elective franchise to that individual. Many of our best German citizens are unable to read and write the English language. I am opposed to such a test. Can Mr. Ashley say as much? Did he not in the halls of congress introduce a bill to that effect?

Fellow citizens of Ottawa county, with the exception, perhaps, of myself, you have an excellent ticket, state judicial and county. Every name commands respect and deserves success. We need a full vote. Do your duty well. Republicans, join the procession. Come in out of the approaching storm. Follow Gresham, McVeigh, Cooley and Governor Cox. Our platform is broad enough and strong enough for every honest man to stand upon its stable planks. The life, the career, and the devotion to duty of Grover Cleveland, is a platform of itself. (Cheers.) It has been the proud boast of the republican party that "it struck the shackles from the limbs of the black man." Let it be our boast that through the instrumentality of tariff reform, and the leadership of Cleveland and Stevenson, we have given relief from unjust taxation to millions of our countrymen, both black and white.

In this district, to repeat the words of Gen. Steedman on Chickamauga's bloody field of battle, "I'll carry the flag to victory, boys, if you'll protect it." I thank you for your kind attention. Good night. (Long continued cheers).

Hon. L. C. Cole, the presidential elector, made an address that simply carried the audience off its feet. He is interested in glass works, and he created a sensation by stating that owing to a trust his furnaces have been closed down for two years, but his dividends go on just the same. His payroll is just $30 a month. If it was not for the present system of protection there could be no trust in the glass industry, and if there would be no trust there would be competition and every glass works in the country would be running full blast, employing every man that could be secured.

Mr. Cole was at home on the tariff, and the great audience moved not for over three hours.

At the conclusion of the addresses the meeting broke up with cheers for Grover Cleveland and Byron Ritchie and the whole democratic ticket.

FOR SHAME!

The President of the United States

Charged With the Offense of Bribery.

Sensational Statement in New Jersey.

Attorney General Hensel Makes the Charge,

And Says He Is Ready To Go Before a Court of Justice and Prove the Truth of It.

New York, Oct. 18.—A democratic mass meeting which was attended by 3,000 persons was held in Newark, N. J., last night.

Gov. Abbett and a host of prominent state politicians were on the platform. Attorney General Hensel of Pennsylvania delivered a rousing anti-tariff speech. Toward the close of his remarks he asserted that four years ago Benjamin Harrison personally superintended the purchase of 20,000 votes in Indiana.

He said he would be glad to have an indictment laid against him in New Jersey for making the statement so that he might have an opportunity to prove it.

ON A RAMPAGE.

An Elephant at Large in Lincoln Park.

Milk Wagons and Horses Suffer From the Contact and Some Damage Is Done.

Chicago, Oct. 18.—The elephant at Lincoln park went on the rampage in the usually quiet neighborhood of the park about 8 o'clock this morning.

The huge animal, which is not yet named, having possibly eaten something for breakfast which disturbed his internal economy, grew suddenly wicked, and, breaking away from his corral, started across country as if he were back in his native jungle once more.

Right through trees and shrubbery, tramping them flat with the earth in his wild career, the huge beast tore across the park to Clark street, then south to Wisconsin, making the air hideous with his discordant trumpetings and shaking the buildings as he passed.

He turned on Sedgwick and continued his way to Center street, followed by an immense crowd of people.

Horses and men ran in wild affright to cover as the elephant passed. A milk wagon was passing its accustomed course on Sedgwick street. The elephant struck it and knocked it a dozen yards away, spreading milk cans and driver promiscuously on the ground and killing the horse. The man was badly hurt also.

Horses on the street cars stampeded, and there were numerous narrow escapes of passengers from serious injury.

At last, at Center and Clark streets, the keepers succeeded in heading off the animal, and throwing a number of lines about him, brought him to a full stop by making them fast to a stout tree.

After futile efforts to escape again the elephant quieted down, and was finally led back to the park. Fully 5,000 people assembled at the capture and followed the elephant back to his quarters in the park.

BAPTIST STATE CONVENTION.

Franklin, Pa., Oct. 18.—The Baptist state convention of Pennsylvania met in annual session in this city. The convention comprising about 400 delegates, is made up of several organizations—Ministers' State union, the State Home Mission society, and the Baptist Young People's union. The conference will last three days, and over 600 interested guests are in attendance. Rev. Mr. Partridge, of Scranton, preached the opening sermon. It will be one of the most interesting religious conventions ever held in this part of the state.

MITCHELL COMES FIRST,

Then Corbett Wants to Fight Jackson.

Great Game of Ball Played in Cleveland.

Interesting Sporting News From All Over the World Gathered for Bee Readers.

Chicago, Oct. 18.—Champion James J. Corbett, his manager, trainer and sparring partner, left the Haymarket right after the performance last night and became the guests of the Chicago Press club. It was a stag party and the gentler sex was barred. The young champion was warmly greeted and was the lion of the hour. All of Chicago's pugilistic talent was trotted out for his benefit.

In reply to the offer of the National club of London of a purse of $20,000 for a fight with Jackson, Mr. Brady, Corbett's manager, sent the following reply:

"My theatrical contracts will prevent me from fighting for a year. When I am ready I will fight Jackson in the club that offers the largest purse and as much money over $10,000 as he wants on the side, providing it is impossible for me meantime to force Charlie Mitchell to fight.

"I am of opinion that I can get more money from the Olympic club of New Orleans to fight Charlie Mitchell than any other club in the world."

On the above subject the Chicago Mail has the following:

"I want to get on a match with Charlie Mitchell first, as I owe him a thrashing for an insult," said Champion Corbett.

"I prefer Mitchell's game to any other, and feel confident that I can whip him with little or no trouble. Of course I am not willing to cancel my theatrical engagements, which run well into next summer, but I will post any amount of money as a forfeit, and will guarantee to meet him at a date specified. I am not anxious to fight right away. I think I ought to have a little time to enjoy the honors I fought for in New Orleans. Sullivan did not fight a championship battle for years, and I think I am entitled to the same consideration. It vexes me to hear of Goddard challenging me, and because I refuse to meet him on the instant, claiming the championship. He has no call upon me, and can bluff to his heart's content if he wants to. I will attend to his case later. It's Mitchell first, and if he cannot be induced to come over here to fight then I will turn my attention to Peter Jackson, and will post $10,000 toward making a match with him.

"My parents and brothers and sisters do not want me to fight Jackson because he is a negro, but that does not hinder me from giving Peter the chance to which he is entitled. I whipped him once, but the club before which we fought called it a draw, and virtually gave the fight to him. Should we meet again I am confident I can whip him easily. I am stronger, quicker, and more scientific than I was at that time, while he has grown older and slower. As I said before, I am more than anxious to meet Mitchell, and my play was purposely written to provoke him to a fight. If he doesn't come to America to see it, my manager will take it to England, where he can not help but see it.

"It's Mitchell first, Jackson second, and then anybody else who wants the game. I am the champion in spite of Goddard, and when the proper time comes the American public need have no fear but that I shall defend the title. As to Bob Fitzsimmons, he is not in my class, and I shall pay no attention to him. Let him meet Jim Hall and vanquish him and then come into the heavyweight class when I will talk business with him."

New York, Oct. 18.—At a special meeting to-night the New York Yacht club will consider the challenge for a yacht race for the America's cup that was received a few days ago from Lord Dunraven. Two years ago the Earl challenged unconditionally, just the same as now, for the America's cup with the Valkyrie. At that time the conditions of the challenge called practically for the abrogation of the new deed of gift, and especially the withdrawal of the obnoxious dimension clause. This the yacht club would not agree to, and the challenge fell through. In yachting circles it is doubted whether anything more satisfactory will come of the present challenge.

Commodore Edwin D. Morgan says he has not yet made up his mind whether or not he will build a boat to defend the trophy, and J. Malcomb Forbes says that while he is pleased to hear of the challenge he is not prepared to say anything at present as to whether he can furnish a yacht to compete.

New York, Oct. 18.—Jim Hall has notified a sporting paper in this city that he will fight Fitzsimmons next March for the purse offered by the Olympic club of New Orleans.

The Cleveland and Boston game of ball in Cleveland, Monday, while not the best on record, was gilt edge as long as it lasted. The game was as follows:

First inning—Umpire Emslie called play at 3 o'clock. Childs was given a base on balls. Burkett attempted to bunt, but popped up a little fly to Stivetts and a double play resulted. Davis flied out to Lowe.—Long, the first Boston batter, hit safely but led off first too far and was caught by a shrewd play by Zimmer, who ran into the diamond and threw to Childs. The latter threw to Virtue and retired Long. McCarthy fouled out to Zimmer Duffy placed a line hit in right but was thrown out trying to steal second.

Second inning—McKean hit safely to left field and went to second on Virtue's sacrifice. He was caught off second by a quick throw by Stivetts although it was claimed that he was not out.—McAleer got a base on balls and stole second, but O'Connor struck out.—Kelly's hit to Virtue retired the batter. Nash flied out to McAleer and Davis threw Lowe out after a great pickup.

Third inning—Zimmer died, Long to Tucker. Young struck out and Childs was given a base on balls and thrown out trying to pilfer second.—Tucker hit to Virtue and was retired. Quinn struck out and Stivetts was thrown out at first by Young.

Fourth inning—Burkett went out, Quinn to Tucker, and Davis died at first on Long's assist. McKean was given a base on balls, but was left, as Virtue's bunt in front of the plate availed nothing.—Long flied out to McAleer, McCarthy struck out, Duffy got a scratch hit, stole second, and went to third on Zimmer's wild throw. Kelly fanned the air.

Fifth inning—McAleer popped up a fly to Quinn. O'Connor and Zimmer both retired, Nash to Tucker.—Nash began with a line hit to left field, but was forced out at second on Lowe's bunt to Young. A passed ball put Lowe on second and he went to third on Tucker's sacrifice. Quinn was thrown out by McKean.

Sixth inning—Young struck out. Childs flied to Long. Burkett put a hot liner in center field and Davis struck out.—Stivetts struck out. Long flied out to Davis and McCarthy hit safely but was thrown out trying to steal second.

Seventh inning—Quinn stopped McKean's hit and retired the batter. Virtue died. Stivetts to Tucker, and Long threw McAleer out.—Duffy flied to McAleer. Kelly fouled out to Virtue and Nash struck out.

Eighth inning—Stivetts stopped O'Connor's hit and retired the batter. Zimmer was thrown out by Long and Young struck out.—Lowe was retired, Davis to Virtue. Tucker died at Child's hands and O'Connor caught Quinn's fly.

Ninth inning—Childs flied out to Lowe, Burkett bunted safely and Davis made a base hit. McKean hit to Long, forcing Davis out at second, and Quinn's throw to Kelly caught Burkett at the plate.—Stivetts flied out to Zimmer. Childs threw

The Tne Ketcham-George Ketcham horse race at Cleveland has been declared off.

Long out and Davis did the same for McCarthy.

Tenth inning—Virtue struck out. McAleer went out, Quinn to Tucker and O'Connor struck out.—Duffy flied to Childs. Kelly died on Childs' assist and Nash fouled out to Virtue.

Eleventh inning—Zimmer was thrown out by Long and Young flied out to Duffy. Childs died on a sky-scraper to Nash.—Lowe was thrown out by Young. Tucker struck out. Quinn hit safely over to second and Stivetts flied to O'Connor.

By this time it had grown so dark that the ball could not be distinguished when hit with force and Umpire Emslie announced that the game was called. The band played "Ta ra ra boom de ay," the crowd yelled once more and away the people scampered for dinner. Score:

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 18.—At a meeting of the directors of the Louisville base ball club held this afternoon, it was decided to pay the players 50 per cent. of their salaries for the remaining 12 days of the season.

Pittsburg, Oct. 18.—Pittsburg base ball circles are excited. All the members of the Pittsburg league team were to-day resigned at the new salary limit, $2,400, except Farrell and Baldwin. The former was cut from $4,200. He left for home in Springfield, Mass., saying he would not play ball at such a figure. As he has plenty of money judiciously invested his kick means he will not play in Pittsburg or anywhere else next year. Baldwin feels about the same way. He was offered a reduction of $1,100, and being a good Homestead striker, objected. He will go into the real estate business. Jimmy Galvin's benefit netted the old man nearly $3,000.

NEW VESSEL LINE.

The Toledo Transportation Company Incorporated.

Boat Will Be Bought or Built—The Capital Stock of the Company Is $100,000.

Yesterday at Columbus the incorporation papers of the Toledo Transportation company were signed by the secretary of state.

The capital stock of the company is $100,000. The incorporators are Oscar P. Bills, T. P Brown, J. F. Kumler, E. O. Keck and F. A. Kumler.

The papers were received from Columbus to-day, and the company will be organized in a few days.

The company is already negotiating for several vessels, among which is the schooner V. H. Ketcham.

The company is organized to lease, own and operate sailing and steam vessels.

Toledo is fast becoming a great vessel center, and if it were not for the taxes, which cause many vessels owned here to be listed elsewhere, Toledo would be first on the chain of lakes.

THE NEW ARMORY.

A Public Inspection Will Be Followed

In All Probability by a Grand Formal Opening When the O. N. G. Officers Meet Here.

The officers of the various local military companies met at the new armory building yesterday afternoon and selected their quarters. Each company will have a parlor 31x30 feet, a dressing room the same size and a smaller room for the captain's office.

Col. Bunker said this morning that the armory would be occupied by the military between the 1st and the 5th of November. The carpet and furniture men are at work to-day putting things in shape. The companies will move in quietly, and after everything is settled nicely there will be an evening set aside when the public can call and inspect the premises. This inspection, however, will not constitute the formal opening. That will be a grander affair and will probably take place later in the season when the officers of the Ohio National Guard meet in Toledo.

The big flag pole is up and the American colors will be flung to the breeze over the building for the first time on Columbian day.

A RECORD BREAKER.

A vehicle that may prove of value to horsemen will shortly be put on the market by an inventor of this city. It is the idea of Charles T. Harvey, of the Pennsylvania Bicycle club, and is termed a unicycle sulky. The illustration of a wheelbarrow will convey something of an idea of this novel device for a speed vehicle, made up of, practically, but a wheel of the pneumatic tire type, a pair of shafts, and a seat. From instantaneous photographs of trotting horses in motion, Mr. Harvey assured himself of the fact that a distance of 18 inches between the horse's hoofs and the wheel was sufficient to preclude all possibility of striking, and then the tendency of the trotting horse is to spread the hind feet, and there would be more probability of striking the wheels of a close-built two-wheel sulky than of striking the center-following wheel of a unicycle rig.

The tremendous strain on the one wheel of a two-wheel vehicle in rounding curves would be done away with in the one-wheel-yoke, and the friction and air resistance reduced to a minimum. One of these vehicles will very shortly be tried behind a fast trotter on one of the local trotting tracks, and the outcome of the experiment will be viewed with interest by both the trotting and cycling fraternity.

REGULAR DEVILS!

A Young Man and Woman Now in Toledo

And Doing Some Wonderful Things With Fire and Electricity—Attractions at the Various Theaters.

There are two young people at the Wonderland who deserve more than a passing mention, as they do as clever an act as has been produced anywhere during recent years. These electrified young people with inflammable breath are son and daughter of a chemist and druggist in Melbourne, Australia. They first figured on the stage as trapezists, but the sister had a fall one night from the trapeze in Queensland, which accident gave her a horror of the hazardous occupation. "Then," said the brother, a handsome youth, to a Bee, "I delved in my father's books on chemistry and invented our present performance.

"We enable ourselves to draw electric sparks from each other and from any object, by storing ourselves with electricity before going on the stage. I have made a machine of my own that supplies sufficient electricity to last twenty or thirty minutes, and to produce sparks two and a half inches long. See how the ends of our fingers are rent by the passage of sparks? I would not be afraid to receive as much electricity as was required to kill Kemmler, provided it is not applied to the vicinity of the brain.

"The daily passage of so much electricity through us has had no perceptible ill effect upon our constitutions. I have never taken more than I could stand."

"But I did once," said the sister. "They were testing my power of resistance against the effect of electricity. Suddenly I felt that I had received too much I tried to indicate that so they would stop the current, but I could not speak. My muscles became rigid. They thought I was laughing. Then I became unconscious and remained so for hours. The doctors said I was paralyzed. When I awoke I underwent the most distressing pains, such as would be caused by having the flesh punctured by a million needles. I recovered, of course. I think I can stand as much electricity as six ordinary persons."

These people can can light gas, paper, cigars, or anything inflammable by placing one of their fingers near it. One of their acts is to set fire to their breath, which exhales a chemically prepared vapor, and blow forth a belch of flame like a natural gas stand pipe.

"We make our breath inflammable," said the brother, "by the use of a chemical preparation which we take three times a day, and to which we add another and different preparation just before each performance. A spark from our fingers ignites the moisture which we exhale with our breath. When we close our mouths we shut off the supply of fuel and the fire goes out."

Haverly's Mastadon Minstrels.

Col. J. H. Haverly has in the course of his career as an amusement caterer controlled many excellent enterprises, but never one that has created such favorable comment from two hemispheres as Haverly's Mastadon Minstrels. This organization will appear in its entirety at Wheeler's to-morrow evening. The Mastadons come with every member of the mammoth cast that appeared in the New York engagement and that has appeared at Haverly's Casino, Chicago, for more than 500 performances, the longest and most successful engagement ever played by any combination. The audiences during this engagement were composed of the elite of Chicago. The company, giving as it did, two performances daily, became the fashionable fad in the world's fair city, and Manager Haverly's beautiful Casino was filled every afternoon with the devotees of fashion. The free open-air concert takes place in front of the post-office to-morrow afternoon, upon which occasion "Kissell' will give an exhibition of his marvelous military musket maneuvers, in which line he has no equal.

At the Wonderland.

The Wonderland is giving the best show of the season in that house this week. There is the girl who does wonderful things in the tank of water, the man who allows stones to be broken on his head, performing goats in the curio hall and a first-class stage performance.

At the People's.

Carter's scenic production, the Fast Mail, opened for a week at the People's last evening. This is an attraction that will please all. The plot is lai din the wicked city of Chicago, and the trail of the story leads the characters to many interesting points, such as the Niagara Falls, the scenic effect of which is fine. The steamboat explosion, the moving train and many other realistic presentations add to the good results attained by the cast. The Fast Mail is a winner.

Frohman's Company.

Thursday and Friday evenings Frohman's company will appear in the Charity Ball and The Wife at Wheeler's. The well-known excellence of the companies bearing the Frohman name has caused that name to be regarded as a sort of trade-mark, and The Charity Ball on its visit here last season fully kept up its reputation. This year the company is said to be even stronger than then. It has had weeks of careful rehearsal under the watchful eye of Manager Frohman himself, and with its entirely new scenery and handsome costuming ought to mae the engagement quite an event.

FIFTEEN CENTS

Is What Toledoans Will Pay for Gas After Nov. 1.

The Gas Trustees Decide on An Increase—Meeting of the Board Last Evening.

The gas trustees held a full board meeting last evening and decided to make the net price of gas 15 cents per thousand on and after November 1.

It was reported that the contract for the pumping station was being rapidly carried out and that the first pump would be in operation by November 1.

The city has now upwards of 6,000 customers, and the increased price should make the plant pay.

Outside of the above nothing but general routine business was transacted.

SIAMESE SMALL TALK.

A French newspaper printed in Siam says that few more extraordinary incidents occur than the visit of European ladies to the houses of native functionaries. Here are some specimens which he says are fair samples of the talk between a European woman and the wife of one of the native ministers:

European Lady—Ah, how glad I am to see you. I have been longing to come for some time, but I have so many visits to make. How is your dear husband, Nai Bun?

Siamese Lady—(scratching her bare legs as a preamble)—Very well, I think.

European Lady—(astonished)—How is that?

Siamese Lady—(coolly)—He left some days ago to see his first wife.

European Lady—(more and more astonished)—His first wife? Well, and you?

Siamese Lady—Oh, I am only his sixth wife.

European Lady—But you have had three children by Nai Bun?

Siamese Lady—(sadly)—Four, if you please; but since the eldest has turned out badly, we don't speak of her now. Since her master has gone home she has run off with his boy.

European Lady—And your second daughter?

Siamese Lady—We shall give her to a man for a hundred dollars, dress and ornaments included. The bargain has almost been made.

The Y. M. C. B. A. has notified its members to turn out Friday with badges and canes. The members will meet at Friendship hall before 1 o'clock.

The Ohio Yacht club members who are to man the fireworks vessel will meet at Capt. Hubbard's office Friday afternoon, to proceed from there to the boat for the purpose of decorating it in an appropriate manner.

The teachers and pulls of Sherman school are preparing for an elaborate celebration of Columbian Day. There will be a patriotic program. Twenty-four girls will give a drill. The boys will arrange something novel. Prof. Pooley will deliver an address and there will be other interesting features.

The committee on program received word to-day from Gen. W. H. Gibson, of Tiffin, who was to have been the orator of the day, saying that he had just returned home and learned of the invitation. He would be obliged to decline the honor as he had previously arranged to take part in the Fostoria celebration that day. The committee is out hustling for another orator.

The music promises to be one of the most pleasant features of the Columbian celebration. Prof. Ogden, of the public schools, has the public school part of the program in charge.

The first will be Kellar's American hymn by the Toledo high school, grammar school and the graduates of last year, under the direction of Prof. Ogden.

The second will be the Star Spangled Banner, sung by Father Hannin's school, directed by Prof. Poulin.

The next will be Hail Columbia, by the Toledo Maennerchor, conducted by Prof. Wylie.

The program will close with America by all present, led by Prof. Ogden. Miss Mary Chapin will act as accompanist.

This morning Mayor Emmick received a communication from Capt. J. B. Wilson, commander of the Bowling Green division, Uniformed Rank of Knights of Phythias, expressing a desire to attend the Columbian celebration in Toledo. His Honor promptly telegraphed a cordial invitation.

The Cycling club is hard at work preparing for the grand lantern parade in the evening. This will take place before the fireworks and the line will pass Riverview park, so that all can see the fire works and the parade without danger of missing any of the sights. The boys want as many ladies to participate as possible, and volunteer to decorate their wheels and furnish lanterns.

NO MORE TRAINS FOR BABIES.

The children's costumes, which are charming enough in the pictures by clever Miss Kate Greenway, are scarcely suitable for the dress of the young folk of the present day. Nothing is more unsuitable, unsightly and inconvenient than damsels in short-waisted frocks with long skirts that obscure their ankles. Some unsuccessful attempts have been made to introduce this style of garment lately. I am glad to see the well-informed and excellent Gentlewoman protect in no measured terms against this awkward and unsightly skirt, and is decidedly in favor of garments to the knee.

Of late years the costume of young girls, with their short petticoats, sable hose and snowy frills has been so picturesque, so sensible and so smart that it is to be hoped there is no chance of its suffering any material alteration. The lengthy skirts which belong to the days of our great-grandmothers altogether ruin the grace of a young figure, besides interfering with all freedom of movement.—London Graphic.

CALLING DOWN THE JUDGE.

At the trial of a breach of promise case—the parties to which were a man of advanced years and a young girl—the judge remarked that this was another instance of the evil effects of "engagements contracted between May and December."

Shortly afterwards the learned judge received a letter from a statistical society intimating that that body would be much obliged if he would favor them with an account of the facts from which he had derived the singular rule enunciated by him as to the infelicity of engagements contracted during certain months of the year.

It is not now a matter of distance from market, but the time in reaching it. It has been truthfully claimed that a farmer living on a poor road, 10 miles from market, is really a greater distance away than the farmer living 200 miles away, but who has the advantages of a railroad. It is the time and cost of reaching the market that adds to the cost of the products.

Our potato crop is not sufficient for our requirements for the coming year, while Canada has more than her people can consume. To keep a cow until she is old in order sell her for beef is not as profitable as may be supposed. Experiments show that if a cow is not beyond six years of age she may be fatted at a profit, but over that age she will not pay the cost of the extra food required. A cow is in her prime when about six years old, and but few will market their cows at that age. It is better to use milch cows without expectation of converting them into beef after they are aged, as the milk will be more profitable than the beef.

Van Houten's Cocoa

in America, contain innuendoes against it, and appeal to the authority of Dr. SYDNEY RINGER, Prof. of Med'cine at University College, London, Author of the Standard "Handbook of Therapeutics," who actually written as follows: "From the careful analyses of Prof. ATTFIELD and others I am satisfied that MESSRS. VAN HOUTEN'S Cocoa is in no way injurious to health, and that it is decidedly more nutritious than other Cocoas.—It is certainly "Pure" and highly digestible.—The quotations to contain advertisements from my book as "The question are quite misleading, and cannot possibly apply to VAN HOUTEN'S Cocoa." The false reflection on VAN HOUTEN'S COCOA is thus effectually repelled, and the very subjects cited to injure it, have thereby been prompted to give it a very handsome testimonial. b

OVERWORKED CLERK:

This Will Greatly Interest You.

A young, hard-working clerk broke down in health and strength from overwork and overstrain upon the nerves. Through nervous weakness he fell into discouragement because wife, mother and sister were dependent upon him.

The same applies to thousands of overworked clerks, mechanics and others who see themselves growing thin in flesh, pale and sallow, and find themselves losing their physical strength and strong nerve. They grow weak, nervous, tire easily, have dull-feeling head, backache, kidney and liver complaint, wake tired mornings, lose their appetite, become constipated, feel miserable, old. They are rapidly breaking down, and should use immediately the great nerve strengthener and blood invigorator, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. It will give a clear head, strong and steady nerves, vigorous strength of body, perfect action of kidneys, liver and bowels, and thus they will be able to keep up to their work.

It is purely vegetable and harmless. Druggists, $1.00.

"I feel it my duty to write what wonderful benefits I have received from Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. I had Nervous Prostration and Dyspepsia terribly. I took Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and before I had taken two bottles I could sleep and eat and felt like a new man. I took three bottles in all and call myself a well man. Should I again get in that nervous state, I shall know what to take to make me well again. I would recommend all who suffer from nervous prostration to take this wonderful remedy, for it is a sure cure. Barney Wilson, Champlaine, Clinton Co., N. Y."

Dr. Greene, the discoverer of this wonderful remedy, is the successful specialist in curing all forms of nervous and chronic diseases, 35 W. 14th street, New York, and can be consulted free, personally or by letter. Call or write him about your case, or send for symptom blank to fill out, and a letter fully explaining your disease, giving advice, etc., will be returned free.

POPULISTS RULED OUT.

A Decision Which Will Always Be Questioned.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 18.—The case of the democratic state committee against Secretary of State Brown was thrown out of the Ramsey county district court this morning through a decision of Judge Brill to the effect that the court had no jurisdiction.

This defeats the efforts of the democrats to have the names of the populist presidential electors, who have been endorsed by the democrats, appear twice on the national ticket.

The decision was not unexpected.

LATE MARKETS.

The receipts of wheat at Toledo to-day are 62,630 bu in excess of the corresponding Tuesday in 1891.

The receipts of wheat at seven western points exceed Tuesday in 1891 by 200,894 bu. The northwest receipts are 136,147 bu less than 1891, the first for a long time, but at five other points the excess to-day is 337,041 bu.

The Liverpool Corn Trade News gives the stock of wheat at 26 continental points October 1, at 18,426,000 bu, against 16,212,000 bu September 1, a decrease in one month of 2,214,000 bu.

A Chicago newspaper gives an extraordinary hypthesies, as bull possibilities. "Suppose the weather should turn from good to bad, would not receipts decrease. With lessend receipts, would not the visible soon cease to increase—possibly go the other way. If spring wheat movement is checked would not the northwest stop selling. In short, on a rainy season might not frighthened shorts make an effort to cover?" We give it all up.

wlSfm.hoefldufui5-mMh'S Sm-2 2ffl|bjw

There is nothing at all new or interesting in the wheat deal. Wheat on ocean passage increased 1,232,000 bus., but about as many consider that a bull as a bear influence—the bulls say it shows a want of the wheat and a desire to buy it at these low prices. The bears say it is only an addition to the vaialable wheat. By the way, this available wheat, consisting of the visible supply as per limited table and the ocean stock is now 79,600,000 bus, compared with 62,600,000 bus, in 1891. While the visible is 24,000,000 more than last year, the ocean stocks is 7,000,000 bus. less.

With all the anticipated wet weather we can hear of nothing more than moderate rains anywhere, which have doubtless helped the growing wheat, and has in no sense hindered corn shipments or grading.

Wheat prices under good weather and continued free receipts have been weak. Chicago reports No. 3 wheat offered at 65 without buyers. What do people send it to Chicago for? It is worth 66c in Toledo. Contract wheat in all markets have kept about steady to-day but at a range of prices about 1-4c below yesterday's closing.

Corn has been firm all day, and quite steady, with the turn in buyer's favor. Contract corn is not bought for export or home consumption. No. 3 is the selling grade, and is about 2c at Chicago below No. 2.

Foreign markets closing is without significance.

In New York October wheat closed at 81 1-2c, a loss of 1-8c; December at 80 1-2c, a loss of 3-8c; May at 87 1-8c, a loss of 3-8c. October corn at 49 7-8c, unchanged; May at 52 1-2c, a gain of 1-8c. October oats at 34 3-8c, a loss of 1-8c.

In Chicago, October wheat closed at 73c, a loss of 3-8c; December at 75 5-8c, a loss of 1-4c; May at 80 1-2c, a loss of 3-8c. October corn at 42 1-8c, a gain of 1-8c; May unchanged at 45 7-8c bid.

In Toledo, the wheat market has been more than usually dull, and prices are a fraction lower. December wheat here is onfl a parity with Chicago, and ought to be worth more. May is but 1-8c higher than Chicago, and ought to be more. On the call May sold at 81 3-4c. On the regular board, October sold at Clover seed was fairly active and prices were a shade higher than yesterday's closing. On the call March sold at $6 60 to $6 62 1-2. On the regular board october at $6 40, November at $6 37 1-2c, to $6 40, January at $6 50 to $6 52 1-2, March at 6 65 to $6 62 1-2, No. 2 at $6 20 to $6 25.

74c and closed at 73 3-4c, a loss of 1-4c; November at 74 1-2c, December at 75 1-2c to 75 3-4c, closing at 75 58c; May at 81 3-4c to 81 7-8c, closing at 81 5-8c bid, a loss of 3-8c.

Cash wheat was in fair demand. No. 2 soft sold at 73 1-2c and at close 73 3-4c was the market, a loss of 1-4c. No. 3 soft at 65 3-4c, closing at that, a loss of 1-4c. No. 4 soft at 59 1-4c. Rejected No. 1 at 66 to 62 1-2c. No. 2 at 50c. Mixed No. 2 at 70c.

Corn—No. 2 at 43c, No. 3 at 42c, No. 4 at 40c. Maysold at 45c.

Rye—No. 2 at 58c, No. 3 at 51c, rejected at 43c.

The receipts of wheat to-day at Minneapolis and Duluth are 779,265 bu and at five other western points 785,597 bu; total 1,564,862 bu. On the corresponding Tuesday in 1891 the receipts at the same points were 1,363,968 bu, including 915,425 bu of northwest wheat, leaving 448,556 bu as the movement to five other points, compared with 785,597 bu to-day.

Export clearances yesterday at four Atlantic ports were wheat 89,054 and flour to an aggregate of 200,000 bu.

English markets as reported herein are firm and a shade better for wheat and firm for corn.

THE POPE'S REPLY.

An Answer to Secretary Foster's Letter.

Washington, Oct. 18.—The text of the letter of Pope Leo XIII. (through Cardinal Rampolla) brought over by the Archbishop of Lepanto, the papal legate in response to the communication from our state department as to the Columbus relics is as follows:

"Rome, Sept. 28, 1892.

"To Hon. John W. Foster, Secretary of State:

"Your excellency's very polite letter which was transmitted to me by Cardinal Gibbons, was forwarded by me to the holy father without delay. His holiness has learned how great was the gratification felt by the president of this great republic at the prospect of receiving the Columbus records which would be sent by the holy See to the exposition which is to be held next year at Chicago in honor of the immortal discoverer of America.

"The August pontiff felt certain that the United States government would spare no pains to preserve the precious objects that are to be entrusted to it from any mishap, and he returns his thanks for the kind offer that has been made for their transportation and for the free passage of the person who is to have charge of them.

"In the meantime, his holiness, who has so many reasons to entertain special regard for the United States government on account of the liberty which is enjoyed in the said states by the Catholic church and who justly admires the enterprise and progress of that country, has decided to be represented at the public demonstrations which are to be held there in honor of the Genoese hero on the fourth centenary of his memorable discovery, by a person who is no less distinguished by his personal qualities than by his grade in the ecclesiastical hierarchy.

"This person is Monsignor Francesco Satolli, Archbishop of Lepanto, a prelate who is highly to be esteemed on account of his virtues as for his profound scholarship, of which he has given many evidences in his writings.

"His holiness does not doubt that this decision of his will be received with pleasure by the government and feels assured that your excellency will welcome the prelate with your accustomed courtesy. Sharing these sentiments of the holy father, I gladly avail myself of the present occasion to convey to you the assurance of the very distinguished consideration with which I am, your excellency's most faithful servant,

"CARDINAL RAMPOLLA."

THE BOKHARA.

Story of the Disaster Told Once More.

London, Oct. 18.—The chief officer of the wrecked peninsular and Oriental steamship Bokhara has sent a cable dispatch to the effect that the ship struck at midnight of October 10.

The heavy seas had extinguished the fires before the steamer struck and the vessel had been in a helpless condition for two hours previous to the catastrophe.

The boats and all the outfitting on the deck were swept away and directly after striking the Bokhara sank. The crew behaved splendidly. Two passengers only are known to have been saved and it is reported that two others succeeded in landing on the adjacent island of the Pescadores group. Thirty-two European members of the crew and 70 natives of the crew were drowned.

The correspondent of the Standard at Shanghai cables: "The steamer Bokhara was wrecked on Sand Island, one of the Pescadores group. There were 200 persons on board of the vessel at the time of the disaster and the wildest scene of excitement prevailed as the endangered people struggled to escape from the angry sea which seemed ravenous for its prey.

"One by one they were swept from the doomed vessel into the raging waters until 160 of those who had sailed on the steamer were drowned. Among the victims were 20 passengers. Dr. Lawson and L. T. Markham, two of the passengers, on the Bokhara, were saved. Five commissioned officers and three sergeants who had been detailed for duty at the British garrison at Hong Kong were among those who found a watery grave."

MRS. HARRISON.

She Remains as Before a Very Sick Woman.

Washington, Oct. 8.—Beyond an increase in the nervousness from which she suffers Mrs. Harrison's condition has not changed and this morning she is reported to be resting quietly after a night of the usual amount of sleep.

The gathering of the watery substance in the cavity of the pleura shows no signs of reproduction to an alarming extent and while Dr. Gardner has not relaxed his vigilance in watching for a renewal of this critical complication, it is believed that danger from this source has passed and that the primary disease can be treated without fear of the necessity for other operations like those narrowly averted a fatal termination at Long Lake.

STREET CAR MEN.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 18.—Delegates to the street railway association convention began arriving in large numbers this morning, and it is expected that several hundred of them will have reached here before night. The display of electric motors and other appliances is very large, two big halls being entirely filled. The business sessions open to-morrow forenoon, when Mayor Rose will deliver an address of welcome and President Holmes, of Pittsburg, will read his annual paper.

THE CAMPAIGN.

Meetings Booked for Byron Ritchie and Others.

The following meetings to be addressed by those named have been arranged for Ottawa county, and other announcements will follow:

Port Clinton, Oct. 22—Hon. Barton Smith and F. A. Baldwin.

Genoa, Oct. 19—Byron F. Ritchie and A. Farquharson.

Elmore, Oct. 22—Byron F. Ritchie and Hon. L. C. Cole.

Marblehead—Byron F. Ritchie, date to be announced hereafter.

Register on Thursday of this week.

No democrat should omit to register on Thursday. It is a duty to the party as well as himself.

The democratic campaign committee is working with a will, with many adverse circumstances to overcome. The members will be grateful for aid and counsel.

Mr. M. G. Bloch has just returned from a three weeks' tour, and is authority for the statement that Illinois will cast its vote for Cleveland and Stevenson and Judge Altgeld for governor.

After all the "argument" in the republican press against the Michigan legislature's electoral bill, a republican supreme court of the United States has affirmed its validity. Law and partisan clap-trap are two different things.

It would be a good thing if the city fathers were as great sticklers for the observance of law in all matters of legislation as they were last evening on the resolution making a small appropriation to assist in the observance of Columbian day.

Judge Scribner, by his gentlemanly demeanor, is winning many additional friends. Unlike his opponent, he is attending to his duties, being too high-minded to scramble for re-election. The people will reward a man of that stamp.

There are more republicans in the city holding the opinions of Messrs. F. N. Quale and Thomas A. Taylor on the presidential question, who should give the public their views. This is a time for patriotic service. The party whip has lost its force.

Hon. L. C. Cole, of Bowling Green, spoke at Oak Harbor last night with Mr. Byron Ritchie. He told some truths which will disturb the lovers of protection. Mr. Cole is laboring in the campaign with his usual zeal, and his labors are appreciated.

Ashley's course in the down-town park matter, as noted by Commissioner E. D. Potter, jr., in the Bee last evening, is in keeping with the gentleman's actions on nearly every public topic for years. The end is near, however, and James M. will retire from view.

Arrangements thus far completed betoken a grand celebration in Toledo on Friday. The finance committee is short about $1,000 to make the affair a complete success. Here is a golden opportunity for a few public-spirited citizens to come to the rescue.

Anti-Harrison clubs are all the rage in Indiana. The members agree to support the entire ticket except the head. Indiana republicans have no particular love for Ben Harrison, and the secess on of Gresham, who has always been popular in Indiana, has given an impetus to the anti-Harrison movement.

Mr. M. M. Eppstein, chairman of the county democratic central committee, was elected vice-chairman of the executive committee yesterday, with full power to act in the absence of Chairman Commager. This is an excellent selection. Mr. Eppstein is an earnest worker, and will be a valuable aid to the committee.

Judge Pugsley has not been criticised by democrats, while many republicans are indulging in uncalled for remarks about Mr. P. C. Hudson, his democratic opponent. This is not just. Mr. Hudson is a lawyer of ability, was a good soldier, is liberal and generous to a fault, and in the event of election, which now seems almost assured, will wear the ermine in a creditable manner.

A movement is on foot in the city for better local government, and a board of control is suggested. This is the form which the Bee has advocated for some years, but has only been met with the cry of "ripper." In the meantime, the lack of so-called ripperism has been felt in Toledo. The legislature will convene in January, and between now and then a measure of reform akin to that in use at Cleveland should be agreed upon.

Now that Governor Ashley is looking for votes he promises to do wonders for the working man. Perhaps Mr. Ashley is sincere—perhaps not. Why does he suddenly see things in a different light? Is Mr. Ashley of any different clay than he was six months ago? Does a man's whole being change like the shifting clouds in a moment? Can day be made night, and black white? Why is he is so considerate of the railroad empolyes' welfare just now? Why does he not terminate at once the unjust discrimination in which his road indulges against its employes? Why does he say "wait, I'll do the right thing after election." Why? Because then, if elected, he could say with the lamented Vanderbilt, only changing it a little, "the railroad employe be d—d."

BRYON RITCHIE'S ADDRESS.

The address of Byron F. Ritchie at Oak Harbor, printed in this issue, is well worthy the perusal of the voters of this congressional district. It is no wonder that the acrobat whom Jim Southard is dragging to his political death was afraid to meet in joint debate the clear-headed, silver-tongued young man who carries the democratic banner bravely. The Bee is giving away no state secrets when it says Mr. Ritchie will be our next congressman, and he will make as capable a representative as this section ever had in congress. Mr. Ashley, now that he has attained a fortune through the efforts of his fellowmen—the employes of the Toledo & Ann Arbor railroad—desires this high honor. He wants it simply and solely as an honor. Will the voters of this city and district sacrifice their own best interests in order to gratify this whim of Mr. Ashley's? Not much.

THE DEMOCRATIC COUNTY TICKET.

While not laying claim to any more political sagacity or sounder business judgment than that given ordinary mortals, it is but just to say that the democrats of Lucas have, in the selection of their county ticket, displayed a peculiar combination of both. The ticket is as strong as any presented to the people in many years. Experience, ability, honesty and all the strongest qualifications of the pushing and successful business man is exemplified in the ticket.

The selection of Mr. Jacob Kohn for county recorder was peculiarly appropriate. He is a young Toledoan with strong business instincts and experience, and, while not a politician in the strict sense of the word, is an able and active hustler. The office requires just such qualifications as Mr. Kohn possesses.

As a simple matter of fair play and common justice there should be at least one democrat in such a business department as the board of county commissioners. Aside from this the democratic candidate, Mr. Luther C. Gibbs, has already occupied the office, was one of the ablest and best commissioners that Lucas county ever had, and is therefore well qualified to fill the position satisfactorily. Never has the slightest stain attached to any of his work while county commissioner. He was clean and honest in everything.

For infirmary director Joseph Gates is the peer of any nominee for the position that has ever been nominated, by any party. He is a self-made and successful business man. The infirmary board needs a revision, and as a matter of self-interest the voters of Lucas county would save money by electing Mr. Gates. There is room for economy in that department, and Mr. Gates is both careful and economical.

Every one who has had business with the city civil engineer's office knows Mr. William G. Root. He has had years of experience in the position of county surveyor, for which he has been named, and this is one office where experience means much to the taxpayer.

In brief, the democratic county ticket is a business ticket from bottom to top, and the taxpayers of Lucas county will be helping themselves in aiding to elect it.

WHAT WE THINK OF THE PRINCE.

The G. O. M. Don't Fancy Funerals.

The Prince of Wales did not attend Tennyson's funeral, but then Mr. Gladstone didn't either, so dishonors are easy.—New York Herald.

Tennyson's Successor.

If a poet laureat is to be selected to hold over during Albert Edward's reign, the laurel crown ought to go to some man that writes "hoss" poetry for the daily papers.—Grand Rapids Herald.

No Fun at a Funeral.

Now the English folks are howling hot on account of the Prince of Wales having cut Lord Tennyson's funeral to go to a horse race. Bertie had a horse in the race and he could not make up his mind to go to the funeral.—Indianapolis News.

A Glaring Fault.

There seems to be no end of flaws in the character of the Prince of Wales. The newest one, or the one latest discovered, is that he regards a funeral as less entertaining than a horse race.—St. Louis Republic.

Hand-Me-Down Speeches.

The Prince of Wales had no particular appreciation of Tennyson, as he has no particular appreciation of literature. So he attended the races instead of Tennyson's funeral. The prince's mind is commonplace, and his nature coarse-grained. A few persons who have been flattered by his attentions, or hope to be pretend that he is a man of remarkable information and sense; and they point for evidence to the little addresses he sometimes delivers on public occasions. The most intelligent opinion of those addresses is that which was expressed by Mr. Lowell, after his return from England, in the famous interview granted to Julian Hawthorne. Mr. Lowell said that nobody thinks that the prince produces those speeches.—Syracuse Standard.

WHITEHOUSE NOTES.

Whitehouse, O., Oct. 18.—Mrs. C. B. Schneider, of Toledo, was in town visiting with friends last week.

Mrs. Amelia Bucher is in Toledo for a week's visit.

The Misses Katie and Maggie King and Mayme Calkin, with Messrs Henry Dick and Ed Calkin, returned to Toledo after a pleasant visit with Mrs. C. M. King.

The hop at King's music hall given last Friday evening by the Bailey base ball club was a success in every respect.

NEW RAILROAD.

Whitehouse, Oct. 18.—(Special)—Wabash surveyors were working here yesterday, lining the new short line railroad to Montpelier and Chicago.

Peter Emore's funeral was largely attended yesterday. He was a soldier in the union army, and though limited in means, never applied for a pension.

W. Alstetter moved his store goods to Swanton yesterday.

FELL FROM A TRAIN.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 18.—Bernard J. Green, a well-known citizen of Philadelphia and a member of the select council in that city, fell from a train on the Pennsylvania road about 7 o'clock this morning while passing Benn's creek near Johnstown. He was picked up by workmen and taken to the Johnstown hospital where the physicians pronounced his injuries as fatal.

FROM ST. MARYS.

St. Marys, O., Oct. 18.—(Special)—North Star, a remote village in Darke county, is torn up over a dastardly crime reported to have been committed last night. Henry Maertz, a prominent farmer, was supposedly murdered, then burned up in his barn, which was destroyed by fire last night, the charred remains being found this morning.

THREATENED TIE-UP.

San Antonio, Tex., Oct. 18.—Advices were received here last night that the Mexican Central railway is threatened with a tie-up. The trouble began three days ago, when the American machinists employed in the shop in the City of Mexico went out on a strike.

NATIONAL BANK OF URBANA, O.

Washington, Oct. 18.—The National Bank of Urbana, O., was organized and authorized to begin business with a capital stock of $100,000. The incorporators are Frank Chance, John H. Young, A. T. Vance, jr., David Londenbeck, and W. R. Warneck.

PLEADS GUILTY.

Councilman Frank C. Tanner in Court.

He Fears a Trial and So Enters a Plea.

That Will Probably Save Him a Heavy Sentence—He Resigns From the Council.

Frank C. Tanner at 2 o'clock this afternoon, appeared before Judge Harmon in common pleas court, and entered a plea of guilty to the charge of bribery.

The evidence in the Daily case was conclusive, and was even stronger against Tanner and others.

This step was taken on the advice of friends, and he expects to appeal to the mercy of the court when judgment is pronounced.

The following entry was made in the criminal docket:

"Frank C. Tanner withdraws his plea of not guilty and pleads guilty. He is ordered to recognize in the sum of $1,000 for his appearance from day to day, during the term until judgment."

Before entering the plea of guilty Mr. Tanner submitted his resignation as councilman to Mayor Emmick couched in the following language:

To the Honorable Mayor of Toledo:

Dear Sir—I hereby submit my resignation as member of the common council from the Second ward.

Respectfully,
F. C. TANNER.

After the court had made the entry and fixed the amount of bail Mr. Tanner, accompanied by his brother, Geo. F. Tanner, and J. T. Friederich, appeared before the clerk, where the bond was signed, the last named gentleman signing as security.

ED. CULVER APPOINTED

Chief Grain Inspector of the Produce Exchange.

Yesterday afternoon at an adjourned meeting of the directors of the Produce Exchange, Mr. Ed. Culver was elected chief grain inspector in place of Mr. Lynn, resigned.

Mr. Culver is a hustling and intelligent young First warder, who well deserves the honor conferred.

He has had a long and successful experience, being private grain inspector for Zahm & Co., King & Co., and other firms for years.

Ed is a good boy, and the Bee congratulates him on his appointment.

SUNDAY JOURNAL SOLD.

C. C. Packard Buys Out the Plant

On a Basis of $16,000—Mr. Tippett Retires From Proprietorship, But Will Remain Until January 1.

There have been numerous changes in newspaper proprietorship the past few months, and these things, like misfortunes, never come singly.

To-day a deal was effected whereby Mr. C. C. Packard becomes sole proprietor of the Sunday Journal, he having bought out the interests of Mr. E. J. Tippett, the business manager of the paper.

The consideration paid is on a basis of $16,000.

The official announcement will not be made before Sunday, but a Bee happened to drop onto the facts in a lawyer's office this morning.

Mr. Packard has purchased a new hoe press and leased the two upper stories of the old Commercial office on Summit stret.

Mr. Tippett, though he retires from the management, will continue to act as business manager of the paper until January 1, when he will sever his connections with the Journal to embark in another enterprise.

BANKS AND STORES

Will Close Columbus Day—A Day for Americans.

Arrangements are being made to-day whereby it is probable that the banks of the city will close Friday. Some favor closing but half a day.

Summit street stores and business offices generally will close on that day.

Toledo merchants are right in line on this occasion, and many will personally participate in the grand parade.

"Of course we will close all day," Mr. J. S. Lamson, of Lamson Bros., said to a Bee. "Why shouldn't we? Even if we were not patriotic enough to march as Americans that day, our clerks would, and we would be obliged to run the store ourselves."

This is the sterling spirit of patriotism that animates Toledo's business men in all business centers.

It will be a great day, and everyone who can walk should be in the parade.

LINE OF MARCH

For the Cyclers' Lantern Parade.

It Will Take Place So As Not To Interfere With the Fireworks and All Can Witness Both.

The illuminated parade of the Cycling club Friday evening will be one of the events of the Columbian celebration in Toledo. It has been arranged to have the parade at such an hour that it will not interfere with the fireworks display, and all pleasure seekers can see both on that evening.

The bicyclists will form near the club house and the line of march will be taken up at 7:30 o'clock sharp. The vari-colored riders will wheel down Madison to Summit and then straight to Riverside park where the fireworks will be viewed. The cyclers will reach the park at about the time when the fireworks will begin.

It is expected that there will be over 500 ladies and gentlemen on decorated wheels. All are invited to participate, especially the ladies. There will be divisions for members, non-members, etc., and everyone will be taken care of. It is the intention of the club to make the parade the grandest thing of the kind ever seen in this city.

MAIL FROM SUBURBS.

An Electric Car to Gather the Letters.

St. Louis, Oct. 18.—This morning Postmaster Harlow has inaugurated a novel system of delivering letters in the city and suburbs. A small-sized postal car, modeled on the pattern of the railway mail cars, has been built and placed on the St. Louis and Suburban Electric Railway Line.

The car will run between the main office and Cabanne and will deliver and receive mail to and from carriers stationed at regular intervals along the line.

This is the first attempt to distribute mail in this manner in this country and the success of the experiment is looked forward to with interest by postmasters generally.

COMMENT OF OHIO NEWSPAPERS.

Just What He Did.

And now comes Gen. James Ashley and declines joint debate with his democratic antagonist.—Dayton Times.

Everything Goes.

The office holders who nominated Harrison are justifying the old adage, "He who buys beef buys bones" and are everywhere being heavily assessed for campaign purposes.—Canton News-Democrat.

Disaffection Among Colored Voters.

The republican managers are scared over the disaffection of the colored voters in Ohio and have made arrangements to bring into the state leading colored orators to try to win them back. The colored voters of Ohio have been fooled too many times by empty promises—Kent News.

Our Own Jimmy Campbell.

Ex-Gov. James E. Campbell is making democratic speeches in western New York and western Pennsylvania. He received a grand ovation at Erie, Pa. Our popular ex-governor has a promising future before him, and he will no doubt be handsomely recognized when Cleveland becomes president.—Mansfield Shield.

Don't Want to Talk Tariff.

The republicans are trying to avoid the discussion of the tariff question and are talking about "wild cat banking." As no one is advocating "wild cat banking" they are talking against wind and simply to divert attention from the main issue, that of tariff. The trouble is the republicans are discovering that the more the people study the tariff qusetion the more they are opposed to the republican idea of a "protective" tariff which only "protects" a few at the expense of the many.—Findlay Courier.

Trade Not What It Should Be.

The republican press is busy detailing how prosperous the country is and how the g. o. p. is responsible for the prosperity. The country is prosperous after a fashion, but how can it be otherwise, with our wonderful industry and opportunities? There is a feeling, however, among all classes of business men that trade is not what it should be. There is an indefinable something lacking that is felt but cannot be explained. Prices of farm products are not firm and a certain demoralization exists in all lines of trade. This is not merely local but is general in all parts of the country. Wholesalers feel the effect of the depression even more than the retailers, and they all complain of a slow trade.—Fostoria Times.

What Next!

And now comes Secretary Charles Foster and charges Joseph Benson Foraker with wanting to trade off Hamilton county to Grover Cleveland, provided the democrats in Hamilton county will turn over the local patronage of Cincinnati to Foraker & Co. Foster believes this to be a fact, and is greatly exercised over the situation. He has no use for Foraker and Foraker has no use for him. Neither has our ex-governor any use for Benj. Harrison. People may talk about Foraker as much as they please, as to his powers in the republican party. The November election will show that Samuel M. Taylor, the republican nominee for secretary of state is defeated, and J. B. Foraker will be the cause of his defeat. "Coxy old Boy," will attend to Hamilton county in the name of Foraker, and no matter what Secretary Foster may say or do, he cannot prevent the election of W. A. Taylor, the democratic candidate for secretary of state. And it will be surprising, even to knowing republicans, if Ohio will not cast her electoral vote for Grover Cleveland, Foster or no Foster.—Fairfield County Democrat.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

To the Voters of the Ninth Congressional District.

To the Editor: You have before you two candidates—James M. Ashley, the republican nominee, and Byron F. Ritchie, the democratic nominee. Now it is for the voters to select the one most fitted for the place, one who will do his duty to the many, not the few.

One, Hon. James M. Ashley, represents the republican party, which means monopoly and capital. He seeks your aid and votes to represent your welfare in congress. Mr. Ashley has a motive to go to congress. Now, what is his motive? He has lain low these many years. He has not been before the public since he tried to impeach Andy Johnson, while Andrew was president, but changes have come in these years, and at last James M. Ashley has become a real, living president; not president of the United States, but president of the Toledo, Ann Arbor & North Michigan railway, commonly called "the Stiff" by railway men the country over. The line runs from Toledo to Frankfort, on Lake Michigan. Mr. Ashley calls it the key to Michigan, but he will find out to his sorrow it is not the key to Washington.

This same Hon. J. M. Ashley wants to go to congress to work against and break up and destroy all labor organizations to the best of his ability, but I think he will fall short. He will not hire, nor will he allow an order man to work on the Ann Arbor road. He gave his superintendent and manager instructions not to hire an order man, B. L. E., O. R. C. or B. R. T., and in fact he does not want men that belong to any labor organization to work for him. He is not the poor man's friend, nor does he or his stripe deserve the votes of the poor men.

Ashley rose from poverty to wealth. He belongs to the noted 400. He has joined the gang known as the monopolists. He represents a monopoly, and wants to go to congress so he can defend monopoly and reduce and crush out labor organizations. He is not the friend of the laboring man.

Ashley pretends to be a friend of the black man. He first blew his horn at the colored men's church, telling how much of a friend he was to the black man. My colored voter, James M. Ashley is your friend until after election and no longer. All he wants is your vote. The black man is not in it with the republicans. They have your welfare at heart only when they desire your votes. If he had his way he would colonize all black men, and so would his colleagues.

Then he goes to Whitehouse, not White House, D. C., to be seen by the young voters of that burg, as he thinks he will capture their first vote. Time will tell.

It is of more interest to the voters of the Ninth district to have a good congressman than a president—one who will look after their interests. Railroad presidents are not the proper men to represent a district. He merely wants to advance his own personal schemes and those of monopoly. Which would you rather have, a monopolist represent you in congress, one who favors syndicates and corporations, monopoly and capital, or one who would befriend the poor man and his interests, who would uphold labor organizations and protect their interests; one who is young and bright in his profession and who is willing to serve his district to the best of his ability? Such a man you have in Byron F. Ritchie. He is the friend of the horny-handed laboring man. He is competing with that deadly foe, monopoly, in the person of Mr. Ashley.

Now, when Mr. Ashley tells you that he is a friend of all laboring men and their welfare he tells you a falsehood. Vote to better your condition and forever throw from your neck that yoke which brings you on a par with foreign labor.

It is for the voters of this district to decide whether they will be represented at Washington by a bright young man, who represents no ring or corporation, who has the get-up and get-there quality about him, or one whose sun is setting low and who is completely encircled, body and soul, by the greatest octopus that is now over this glorious land, controlled by the few, not the many.

M. E. GILLESPIE.

Toledo, O., Oct. 17.

A Card From Janitor Peugh.

To the Editor: In your issue of October 11 you print a report of the proceedings of the board of education at which I was charged with having interfered with the discipline of the schools in the Monroe street building, of which I have been janitor. I have since learned that your reporter left before my case was brought before the board and did not hear my statement. I therefore desire to go before the public in a correct light, and ask you to publish the following statement:

I have not interfered with the discipline of the school, but have been furnishing the material with which to whip pupils. At the request of Miss Sargent, soon after school began, I got her some switches. Not long after this I gave her a strap, also at her request, to be used to enforce the discipline. That strap was a trunk strap, about five or six feet long and one inch broad. It is still in the building and has been quite frequently used by teachers. Soon after I gave her the strap, a loaded rawhide, or horsewhip, was brought into the building, and has been enforcing discipline for nearly two years, very frequently. I spoke in opposition to the rawhide from the first, saying that I did not think it the proper kind of a whip to use in the schools; that I should be afraid of the consequences, and that they might whip the wrong boy. I have on two or three occasions had conversations with Miss Sargent on the subject of corporal punishment in the schools, I always giving my disapproval of it, but always in the most friendly manner, a harsh or angry word never passing between us.

On Friday morning, September 30, I was in the basement sweeping, just after school had been called, when I heard Miss Sargent talking loud and in an angry tone on the opposite side of the basement from where I was. I knew there were two or three others with her, from the sound of their feet on the stairs. She took the boys into the furnace room and began rawhiding them. This was kept up so long and the boys' cries and pleadings were so pitiful, I could not resist, and walked into the room. She stopped as soon as I entered, gave the boy a push and said "Go." After the boy had gotten nearly up stairs she turned to me and said, "That boy has run away from school five or six times." I replied, this being the first time I had said anything. "That won't cure him, but would be a good way to keep him out of school, to whip him."

This is the whole of my interference with what they are pleased to call the discipline of the schools. Miss Sargent and I have always been the best of friends and got along very harmoniously. I reported the matter the same day to Mr. Eversman, the member from the Seventh ward, the building being in his ward, and, as I understand, the members have a supervisory care over the schools in their respective wards. He said he would attend to the matter, which he did, and, as I am informed, settled on Saturday with Miss Sargent, she agreeing to drop it.

Men Who Can't be Cudgeled.

James G. Blaine seems to be at last in line. The Quays, Dudleys, Blaines and Platts always get into line sooner or later. It is the Greshams, the MacVeagh's the McCullochs and the Cooleys who can neither be cudgeled nor cajoled into further support of a party which has abandoned its principles.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

The Unprogressive Plumed Knight.

Our esteemed friend James G. Blaine has been talking again, and curiously enough he has advanced no further in his protection arguments than in 1888. He still adheres to his theory that the manufacturing interests of the country are the only ones of any importance and that it is perfectly proper to tax the farmer out of existence to make large profits for the manufacturing capitalist.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

Will Set Others to Thinking.

Mr. Wayne MacVeagh's address to his fellow citizens of Philadelphia, setting forth his reasons for leaving the republican party, is about as vigorous a campaign utterance as has been made thus far, and it can scarcely fail to set a great many of his former political associates to thinking. Mr. MacVeagh's explicit statement that his coming of age coincided with the birth of the republican party, and that he has never until now voted for any one but a republican for a political office, very effectually disposes of the sneer that he is not a new convert.—Boston Herald.

THE ORGAN GRINDER'S BABY.

I wonder what he thinks,
As there he sits and blinks
His little black eyes on his mother's hip;
And calmly looks around
On window, stoop and ground,
And sucks his little candy-sticky lip.

I wonder if he cares
For all those stupid airs
The organ grinds out up and down the street,
"When Danny's by My Side,"
The skirt dance and the glide,
And "Maggie Murphy's Home" and "Marguerite."

I wonder what he'd do
If he had a home like you,
With nurse and toys, and little shoes and socks;
And porridge and new milk,
And caps and cooks of silk,
And picture books and gorgeous building blocks.

I guess he'd do the same
As you babies of higher name,
He'd kick his little heels up very high;
A lovely little lad,
Till something made him mad,
And then he'd yell and hold his breath, and cry.

TWO PAINTED DOORS.

Mr. Milner boarded at 3 Simpson terrace. (There was no terrace, but the Squire thought the name sounded sonorous and pleasant, so he had christened his five little cottages "Simpson terrace.")

He boarded with Mrs. Chipley and her two daughters, Maud and Marion, who felt it a great distinction to be of any service, however slight, to the pastor.

Maud gathered fresh flowers for the study table every day; Marian sat up late nights to iron and mend table linen so that the good man might have a clean napkin every day, and to darn his stockings so that you could not tell mended places from the whole, and the little widow herself exhausted every culinary resource to humor his dyspepsia, and to contrive dainty dishes out of the least possible foundation.

"And now that Mr. Milner is safely gone for the day," said Mrs. Chipley, "we'll clean the sitting room and whitewash the walls. Run to Dixey's, Maud, for a lump of unslacked lime, and—oh, by the way, bring some cornmeal, dear. We'll have hasty pudding for dinner, and eat at the kitchen table. Hasty pudding and milk will do for us women."

"Of course it will do, mamma," said Maud.

"I just like pudding and milk!" cried Marian, jumping gleefully up and down, "and although Mr. Milner is such a dear, good man, yet it is a sort of relief to have him gone once in awhile, so that we can clean house and eat hasty pudding and milk."

"Oh, Maud!" she whispered to her aesthetic sister, as Mrs. Chipley went out to hang the big kettle over the fire, "I've such an idea in my head! If you'll only get a little grass green paint ready mixed, when you are at Dixey's and a medium-sized brush!"

"Green paint, Marian?" What for?"

"Hush!" don't let mamma hear!" I'm so tired of hearing this called the house with the blue door."

Maud obeyed; although the elder in point of years, she had long been accustomed to be domineered over by pretty, positive Marian.

"But it is the strangest thing, Marian," she said, as, 15 or 20 minutes later, she handed over a mysterious tin can, and an oblong paper parcel to her sister; "Joe Dean is now painting his door blue."

"Tastes differ," said Marian, shrugging her shoulders, now invested in a preternaturally shabby old calico gown, suitable only to the extremest exigencies of housecleaning time.

"The Deans are expecting city company to luncheon," said Maud. "They sent to borrow the butterfly china plates this morning."

"It must be nice to have city company," sighed Marian.

"Oh! but to think of the work of it!" said Maud, lifting both her hands.

Mrs. Chipley came in at that moment, also clad in what Marian called her "scrubbing regimentals," and wearing an old olive silk handkerchief tied around her still bright and glossy hair, and the three set themselves determinedly to work.

Rev. Milo Milner, on reaching the railway station, received a telegram that his friend, Prof. Klingenburg, could not possibly meet him that day.

"Very good," said Mr. Milner; "I'll just step back home and get a mouthful of luncheon, and then I'll go to look over those religious manuscripts with Dr. Hodges."

Mr. Milner tucked the umbrella under his arm, tipped his black, wide-rimmed hat over his eyes and set off on a swift, swinging stride back to Simpson terrace. The blue door stood wide open. So he walked in without the least ceremony.

"Fresh paint!" he said to himself, lifting his thin nostrils. "If there is anything on the face of the earth I detest it is fresh paint. And I've got it all over the skirts of my best coat, too! Where is Mrs. Chipley? What has become of the girls? Nobody ever seems to be in the way when they're wanted."

"But, fortunately, here's luncheon ready spread. I wonder now how it happened? How could they know I was coming back? Cold roast grouse, with current jelly, chicken salad, pickled oysters; really, now, this is something quite beyond our bill of fare."

The pastor sat down and ate with an excellent appetite. He made a big hole in the chicken salad mound; he picked the bones of a crisp, brown goose with genuine satisfaction; he buttered a flaky biscuit and added to its flavor by several spoonfuls of amber quince preserve.

"All the same," he said to himself, as he wiped his mouth with a damask napkin and rose from his chair, with another glance at the vegetable-shaped watch; "this sort of thing is quite beyond Mrs. Chipley's means. I thought she had better sense. I must really speak to her about it. In the meantime I must make good speed if I expect to have much time at my friend Hodge's place."

Away he trudged, much comforted and sustained as regarded his inner man.

"Joe! Joe!" shrieked Miss Francesca Dean, coming into the room a few minutes later, "what have you done? Eaten up all the company luncheon? Oh, you greedy—"

"I didn't do no such thing!" shouted Joe from an upper room, where he was transforming himself from an amateur journeyman painter to a modern tennis player. "What are you talking about?"

"Someone has eaten his fill!" cried Miss Francesca. "Just look at the table!"

"Then it's some tramp sneaked through the door that I left open to dry the paint," bawled Joe, smiting his leg.

And while the Dean family were endeavoring to repair the damages, the task of house-cleaning went swimmingly on at the Chipley domicile, only two doors away, the girls and their mother scarcely taking time to sit down and eat their hasty pudding, which, by the way, got scorched through Maud's over-devotion to putting the chintz curtains at the pastor's study windows.

But hasten as they would, the newly whitewashed walls were scarcely dry, and the furniture not yet re-arranged, when dusk descended on the scene and Rev. Milo Milner came in.

"Oh, take care, Mr. Milner!" exclaimed Maud; "the door—the paint is fresh."

Mr. Milner solemnly advanced into the area of the lamplight, and, twisting himself around to get at the skirts of his coat, eyed them disconsolately.

"More paint," said he. "Blue paint."

"No," said Marion. "Green!"

The two colors were ludicrously alike by lamplight. The green might be mistaken for a lively blue—the blue for a dull green.

"Blue!" said the pastor, firmly. "Do you think I haven't the use of my eyes?"

"Green," persisted Marian. "I know, because I put it on myself."

"It is not well," said Rev. Milner, "for the young to be too positive."

"But the truth is truth," said Maud.

"And while I'm about it," said Mr. Milner, now thoroughly exasperated, "I deem it my duty to remonstrate with you concerning the extravagant and unwarranted style of diet in which you indulge during my absence!"

"I don't know what you mean," said Mrs. Chipley, feebly catching her breath.

"Hasty pudding and milk can't be called extravagance," hazarded Maud.

"Scorched at that," murmured Marian.

"Roasted grouse and current jelly," said the pastor. "Chicken salad and sponge cake and—here again I trust to the evidence of my eyesight—all set out on your old butterfly pattern china. I know, because I ate of it myself."

"You—you got into the wrong house," gasped Maud.

"It was the house with the blue door," serenely uttered Mr. Milner, as if this were an incontrovertible argument.

Marian clapped her hands hysterically.

"Mamma," she cried— "Maud, Mr. Milner was the tramp who ate up Miss Dean's company luncheon. That was just what Francesca Dean told me they had prepared! And on our butterfly china, too."

"It was the house with the blue door," stubbornly repeated Mr. Milner.

"But Joe Dean painted their door blue to-day! 'exclaimed Marian. "And I painted ours green."

The pastor sank limply into a chair.

"Then," he said, "I've got green and blue paint both on the skirts of my coat—and I have made a dreadful blunder in the bargain! And I must go at once and apologize to the Dean family; but not until you, my kind friends, have forgiven me for my meddling interference."

"But, really," said mischievous Maud, "hasty pudding isn't an extravagance."

Mrs. Chipley and Marian hastened to deprecate the pastor's humility, and he went sadly to make his peace with Miss Francesca Dean.

"It is kind o' queer," said Deacon Pidpott, talking the matter over, some days afterward. "The dominie he plumb admits that he's sort o' absent-minded, and needs a wife to keep him straight. And I'll bet even on pretty Miss Maud and Francesca Dean."

The deacon, however, was wrong for once in his life. Pastor Milner did get married, but it was neither to blue-eyed Francesca nor the dark-robed Maud. Like a sensible man, he proposed to Widow Chipley herself and was accepted at once.

"But if Mrs. Milner does not object," he said with due courtesy, "I should like to have the front door painted blue once more."

One of the industries in connection with the tea trade is the collection of the lead with which tea-chests are lined. There are many uses for it; it is found very valuable in making the finest kinds of solder.

The lowest barometric pressure on record is 27.135 inches, which was observed in 1885 during a small but intensely fierce storm over the Bay of Bengal. A most remarkable feature about this tempest was its small size; its diameter was only about 100 miles. Vessels passing through it escaped with great difficulty on account of the strong centripedal draught.

The ancient Romans considered February 29 a most critical season, always reckoning it among their unlucky days. That this belief has not by any means lost ground is evidenced by a deep-rooted dislike parents have to a child born on leap day, it being a popular notion that to come into the world at such an odd time is ominous as signifying the babe's speedy exit.

Some people suppose that rosewood takes its name from its color, but that is a mistake. Rosewood is not red or yellow, but almost black. Its name comes from the fact that, when first cut, it exhales a perfume similar to that of a rose; and, although the dried rosewood of commerce retains no trace of the perfume, the name lingers as a relic of the early history of the wood.

THE BEST IS THE CHEAPEST!
Official Test of Rubber-Lined Cotton Fire Hose by the Board of Fire Commissioners of Duluth, Minn., February 25, 1892.

The Board of Fire Commissioners of the city of Duluth, Minn., recently received proposals from manufacturers of fire hose to furnish the city with additional hose for fire department service.
Owing to the fact that every agent present upon that occasion, claimed to represent the ONLY brand of hose that could be depended upon to discharge the greatest quantity of water, all other conditions being equal, the commissioners finally resolved to satisfy themselves, and declared in favor of having a public test. Manufacturers who desired to enter the test were requested to furnish 500 feet of hose, with Duluth fire department couplings attached.
Seven competitors entered the field. Each line of hose—500 feet—was attached to a steam fire engine, and subjected to a water pressure of 200 lbs. to the square inch, and discharged water through 1 1-8-inch smooth bore nozzle. Note the result:

Name of Company	Brand of Hose.	Weight of Hose per Section	Effective Pressure at Nozzle.	Gall'ns Discharg'd per Minute	Ratio in Gals Discharg'd per Hr.	No. of gallons per hr. than discharged by the surprise hose.	Elongation of Hose.

Boston Woven Hose Co	Boston Fire Jacket	52 lbs	79 lbs	327	19 620	1920	27 ft

Owing to a high wind prevailing during the test, the distance reached by each stream was not taken into consideration.
The "Surprise" hose not only showed the best results at the nozzle but delivered the greatest quantity of water, and stretched less than any other hose that entered the test.

A REMARKABLE CASE.

A Popular Young Chicago Lawyer, Though An Expert Swimmer, Helplessly Drowned—He Had Ample Wealth and $200,000 Life Insurance.

Here is a story anent life and accident insurance much out of the common run, yet of unusual force in illustrating the insecurity of mundane existence.

Mr. G. was a young Chicago attorney, clever, energetic and popular. He was a natural money maker, sure in a few years to have been a millionaire. His health was simply phenomenal; his love of life and ability to get good and enjoyment therefrom that of one man in a thousand. His was an organization illustrated, for example, by the power to work at his office and in court up to train time, then off to the woods, lakes or sea for a few weeks of recreation and back again to labor at the minute fixed. He has been known to leave Chicago, reach New York the sailing day of the Teutonic, go on board in the height of the season with no preliminary notice to the company, sleep on the floor of an officer's room, spend a week in London, and be back at Chicago inside of a month, having secured two or three new clients with fees more than enough to pay for a half dozen such trips. He was a gourmet in the finest sense of the term, a social and business favorite, of an English army family, happily married to a gifted lady, and the proud father of a beautiful little girl. No man ever had a heartier friend than he always proved to be; ready to encourage, laugh away apprehension, and show that life was bound to yield in the long run more of brightness than gloom.

Among the evidences of his ability was the fact that some years ago he took life and accident insurance amounting to over $200,000, all in standard companies. His wife was of a cordial, wealthy family, but it wasn't his way to expect them to care under any circumstances for him or his. He meant to be and was, fast becoming rich, but though one of the wealthiest men that ever lived knew human existence to the individual to be as uncertain as a breath of morning air. So he piled on the insurance, and thought no more about it except to pay the premiums, and then plunged into hard work, honest enjoyment, and deserved happiness, with a keener relish, if possible, than ever.

He was a life-long hunter and fisherman, and had been the mainstay of coteries of lovers of gun and rod in a hundred jaunts into the wildwoods. The largest salmon ever taken by hook have had their stuffed skins shown in Chicago as tokens of his skill in the angling art, while his sureness as a shot was proverbial.

A few weeks ago he went with a small party of friends to a hunting and shooting box in an adjacent state. One day two or three of the party were fishing in separate boats, with their guns also handy in case any game should rise. Mr. G. had that morning killed the two largest fish ever taken from the lake and had gone out again for "just one more," as he was to return home that night. A member of the party a little distance away chanced to look toward Mr. G.'s boat, and noticed the latter gentleman standing up tugging as if to remove his coat, but thought nothing of the incident until, glancing that way again, he saw that Mr. G.'s boat was empty. He at once rowed toward it. A stout line was hanging over the side. Pulling at the line there came slowly to the surface the body if his dead friend. The horrible situation was as plain as day. In handling his line while casting Mr. G. had caught the hook in the back of his coat. Finding he could not reach it, he stood up to remove the garment, and as the two sleeves were half off the boat bowled and, with his arms as tightly pinioned as though he was in a strait jacket, he was thrown into the water. He was one of the best swimmers in the United States, but with arms thus bound, and a coat pocket full of cartridges, and long, heavy top hunting boots, was helpless as an infant and sank like a plummet. When death sends for a man skill, health, love of life and all else are as naught. He goes.

Meanwhile there remains in this case, besides much real estate and other property, over $200,000 of the insurance money, already received, the income of which will maintain the stricken wife in affluence and rear the child in the manner its ancestry demands. Inevitable fate cut off the man's life half a century too soon, but fate itself was powerless to nullify the results of his judgment and forethought.

THE ALDERMEN

Not Very Liberal to the Columbus Celebration.

Squabble Over Asphalt Once More—The Bower Trial Discussed.

The aldermen were in a kittenish mood last evening, and they had their little joke, including several home thrusts, half fun and whole earnest.

The first discussion followed a motion to reject all bids for the paving of Fulton avenue.

President Heuberich descended from the chair, and asked for the whereofness of this act. It was stated by Mr. Hodge that there were several lower bidders, and it would be well to take advantage of the competition.

Mr. Graham stated that asphalt will cost from 50 to 75 cents a yard more today than when the old bids were received. He did not think the contract should go to the Warren-Scharf company, but to Streicher, whom he claimed to be the lowest bidder.

Mr. Hassenzahl said that Streicher was for land asphalt, and the property owners did not want it.

Mr. Hodge made a motion to refer the matter back to the committee, but a substitute to lay on the table carried.

Later on Mr. Graham presented a resolution to award the contract to Streicher.

Mr. Hodge stated that in his opinion the property owners should be given an opportunity to be heard. Turning to Mr. Graham, he said: "It seems rather strange that you are so anxious, all at once, for Streicher to have the contract, when you opposed it so bitterly in the committee just a short time ago. This is a very sudden change."

The resolution was lost, Messrs. Graham and Heuberich voting for it.

The resolution to improve Jefferson street from Superior to Eleventh street passed, but the remainder was sent back to the committee.

The ordinance to improve Dorr street was laid over two weeks.

When the resolution from the councilmen to fix the time for the Bower trial on November 16 came up, Mr. Hartford wanted to know if it could not be brought about sooner.

Mr. Read remarked that when November 16 was fixed it was done with a view of bringing the trial about after the councilmen had been tried in common pleas court, for the reason that attorneys representing Mr. Bower were also defending the councilmen.

"Then, again," said Mr. Read, "the municipal atmosphere may be a little clearer by that time."

It was concluded that no time could be gained, so the resolution passed.

Mr. Leroux presented a resolution to contribute $200 toward the Columbian celebration, but it did not carry. Messrs. Hassenzahl, Hodge, Wolfman and Hartford opposed it. Mr. Hartford said it was not legal to take such action, and he was not going to be dishonest.

"You have no compunction about spending $60 for champaign," was a soaker by President Husbesich, who wanted the money appropriated.

The city solicitor was authorized, on the request of the gas board, to sue the Finlay Brewing company for $4,208.32 for gas used by them. A resolution also passed to advertise for bids for gas bonds.

At the recess meeting, held October 7, there were only four present. A vote was taken to recess until the following Wednesday. Four was not a quorum, consequently the business transacted on the 12th was not legal and will have to be enacted over.

The board voted to march in the Columbian day parade.

KILLED A TRAMP.

He Had Robbed a Milk Wagon Driver.

Port Jervis, N. Y., Oct. 18.—The unknown tramp who was shot and killed yesterday after robbing Milkman Shay was about 35 years old, 5 feet 3 inches tall, with dark brown hair, streaked with gray, and brown mustache. The bullet which killed him entered the left side, passed through the lung and cut the wind pipe. Diligent search is being made here and around Matamoras for the two robbers who escaped. The residents have been annoyed for sometime by petty thieving but this last broad daylight robbery has so incensed them that if the other two thieves are caught they will fare badly.

CALAMITY JANE.

Mrs. Lease Denies the Alleged Interview.

New York, Oct. 18.—Mrs. Mary E. Lease, who stumped the south with General Weaver, the people's party candidate for president, telegraphs a morning paper as follows:

"The special going the rounds of the press in regard to an interview in which I am reported to have advised the populists to vote for Harrison, or that a vote for Weaver was a vote for Cleveland, is unqualifiedly false. I would consider it a public calamity for either Harrison or Cleveland to be elected. Mrs. Mary E. Lease, Mt. Pleasant, Ia.

Interesting News From a Lively Town.

Gossip From the Indiana Oil Field of General Interest.

St. Marys, O., Oct. 18.—(Special)—A large number of new wells have been completed in the Indiana oil field within the past week, and further doubts concerning the practicability of wild-cat developments have almost been dispelled. The most activity is in the Camden pool, where some splendid producers are being completed.

The Portland Gas company's No. 1 on the N. Hidy farm, in Penn township, Jay county, is in and good for 150 barrels. The same company has completed its No. 1 on the Hyatt farm and is doing 130 barrels.

Waldron & Scott have completed No. 1 on the Mason farm in Penn township, Jay county, and it is one of the best oilers in the field. Its production is 250 barrels.

The Ohio Oil company No. 1 on the Graves farm is an average gas well. No. 2 on the same farm was completed yesterday, and is good for 250 barrels.

Patch & Co. have just brought in a large gasser on the Grissell farm.

The Ohio Oil company has completed No. 5 on the H. McCallister farm, in Jackson township, Jay county, and is good for 125 barrels. No. 6 on the same farm is completed and for the first 24 hours produced 350 barrels. The six wells on this farm are producing about 1,200 barrels of oil daily.

Chas. Hart of this city has just finished a gas well on the Hyatt farm.

The Ohio Oil company's No. 1 on the McCallister farm is completed and good for 100 barrels.

The Northern Indiana Oil company has completed its No. 4 on the Hilton farm, in Penn township, Jay county. It is good for 200 barrels. The same company has completed No. 1 on the Tewksbury farm, same township, and is good for 150 barrels. The same company's No. 1 on the Lacy farm is in, and good for 200 barrels. Nos. 2, 3 and 4 on the same farm are drilling.

The Mutual Fire insurance company, of Marion township, Mercer county, has been sued by Henry Hasselman for $790, in which amount he claims his house, which burned down recently, was insured, he having been unable to effect a settlement with the company. The insurance company claimed fraud upon the part of Hasselman as the reason for not paying the amount insured. It is claimed that Hasselman had met with bad luck and was on the verge of losing his farm and judgment to that effect had already been rendered, when the fire occurred, which causes suspicion and will make the suit an interesting one.

A disastrous fire was narrowly averted at Meadon, 12 miles northwest of this city, last night. A lighted lamp exploded among some mail bags in the postoffice and the fire had a good start, when it was discovered and just in time to save the village from going up in smoke, as the business houses are all built close together, and the village is without fire protection.

RAILROAD DEAL.

The Pennsylvania Credited With Getting More Lines.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 18.—Itw as rumored among the railroad offices yesterday that a big deal had just been consummated in which the Pennsylvania southwest system, embracing the Pan Handel and Vandalia lines, had absorbed the Terre Haute & Peoria road and its branches.

The main line of the Terre Haute & Peoria system, from Terre Haute to Peoria, is 176 miles in length. The connecting lines are the Des Moines & Kansas City road, covering 111 miles and the Chicago Fort Madison & Des Moines road, 49 miles in length. Pennsylvania officials know nothing of the matter.

In effect the court decides that through lines are not local lines, nor through tariffs local tariffs, within the provisions of the inter-state commerce law.

MARY AND JOHN.

A Practical Lesson in Politics Poetically Illustrated.

Demonstrating How Women Run Things Out in Kansas—What Mary Meant by "Rats."

I was one of them "Fool Farmers;" yes, I'll own it like a man;
Ther was plenty of us fashioned on the same peculiar plan;
And I lived out in Kansas more than five and twenty years,
A growing poorer and poorer as it certainly appears.

I seldom read the papers, I work too hard for that,
And never knew why I got lean while other men got fat;
I didn't fool with politics, I had too much to do;
But I always voted as I shot, and as they told me to.

The day before election, just imagine my distress,
When I ketched my wife a readin'—now what would you guess?
A Free Trade publication, and, to make it worse, she said,
She'd read it regular each night before she went to bed.

And, do you know, that wife of mine just faced me up and down,
That farmers slave to make a few monopolists in town.
I always try to get around these warm domestic spats;
But when I praised Protection, she laughed and answered "Rats."

I bristled up; it kindled all the sentiments of steife
To think this Free Trade stuff should be corruptin' of my wife;
I quit her then and there before her argument was through,
As every good Protectionist makes it a rule to do.

That night we had a camp fire, and our congressman was there;
We gave him "John Brown's Body" when he went to take the chair;
I wore my old blue uniform to spite the Democrats,
But all the time I wondered what my Mary meant by "Rats."

Our congressman was eloquent, he made a stirrin' speech;
I could almost see the battle's smoke and hear the bullets screech;
And when he bade us vote as we had shot at Malvern Hill,
We rose with one accord and cried with one acclaim, "We Will."

We sang the good old war songs and we ate a mess of beans,
And we passed the evenin' pleasantly recallin' bloody scenes;
And we took the straight-out ticket and we pinned them on our hats—
But all the time I wondered what my Mary meant by "Rats."

When I reached home I noticed that my Mary wore a smile,
Which seemed to me as indicatin' storms ahead or bile;
To head her off I said, "You'll call me early, Mother dear,
For to-morrow will be the liveliest day Free Trade will have this year."

Next mornin', just at sun up, as I woke and rubbed my eyes,
A wonderin' what she meant by "Rats," I saw to my surprise,
My clothes, and hat, and boots, all 'ranged in order on the floor,
And bearin' each a card, I'd swear I never saw before.

My flannel shirt displayed this sign, "Taxed 95 per cent;"
My trousers, "Taxed 100"—so this is what "Rats" meant;
My vest was, "Taxed 100," and my shoes
My coat and hat "20%" with "Protection makes us thrive."

I went to fill the basin and noticed as I came,
"Taxed 45 per cent," Great Scott! The towel said the same.
The soap was marked at "20," as I dropped it on the floor,
I chanced to see a scuttle full of coal, chalked "24."

I passed into the kitchen, and it gives me pain to state
That my wife had on a woolen dress stamped "Only 58;"
And in shooing out a guinea hen she made a little dive
Which showed a pair of stockings with a card marked "35."

The baby in his little bed was lyin' fast asleep;
I always held the little chap as most uncommon cheap;
But when I saw sheen cards on blanket, pillow, crib and sheet,
I felt a lump raise in my throat—I knew that I was beat.

No matter where I went I struck them pesky little signs,
The stove, the plates, the knives, the forks, the window sash and blinds.
The scissors, needles, thread, all bore that terrible per cent;
B' gosh, I didn't dare to ask what card was on the rent.

That was the shortest meal I ever ate in all my life,
And as I left the table, in remarking to my wife,
That I was going to the polls, she helped me with my coat,
And said "I reckon, John, I needn't tell you how to vote."

I walked down to my voting place, it looked like every yard—
Was full of farmin' implements which wore a little card,
And seemed to say, from plow to spade, from thresher down to ax,
"Good mornin' John, and don't forget, the Tariff is a Tax."

I voted straight. Oh, yes! no doubt of that; I voted straight,
But not exactly in the way expected of my state;
And I showed the boys the little cards provided by my wife,
That night our congressman took formal leave of public life.

I was one of them "Fool Farmers," during five and twenty years,
But I've learned a little common sense, as doubtless now appears.
You can run and tell McKinley, and, say, don't forget to state,
That we've voted out in Kansas, and we voted darned near straight.

NO FLIES ON THIS GAME.

The young people in one of St. Lou's prettiest suburbs are in a state of feverish excitement over a new game that has been devised by some of their number. It is called "progressive hammocking," and is so full of golden opportunities in a sentimental way that it is destined to become very popular with the youth of both sexes.

A bright young girl, to whom, with several others, is due the credit of having given this new diversion to the world, thus describes it:

"You see, each girl is provided with a hammock, in which she reclines, gracefully or ungracefully, according to the extent of her experience in hammocking, during the game. The hammocks are hung far enough apart so that no one can see or hear her neighbors, and above each is suspended a Chinese lantern with a number on it; but these of course, will be blown out early in the proceedings. A chaperone is required—preferably two—a lady and gentleman. To start the game the boys draw numbers from a hat, and then each hunts up the hammock which corresponds to the number drawn. At a given signal he begins to tell the girl in it a love story. By the rules the story must be impersonal.

"But of course they won't be. 'That,' she added with a laugh, "is a matter that lies with the story teller and his conscience. Well, at the end of 15 minutes, the chaperon beats a tom-tom and the boys move up one hammock, and each tells another story to a new listener. The stories, mind you, must all be different—that is, one cannot tell the same story to two girls.

"And they must all be love stories?" asked the reporter.

"Certainly. Oh, it's fun. The boys out there are scouring the town for short love stories. De Maupassant is in great demand. But some of them draw on their own experience for material. Well, when the rounds have been made, and each of the six, say, has told six pleasing tales to six tender maidens a secret ballot is taken, the girls voting for the best story teller and the boys for the best listener. That's where the funny part comes in, for of course, each girl will vote for the man she likes best, and vice versa; hence, the chaperon will become the sacred repository of one half dozen true love tales."

'What about the prizes?"

"There will be six first prizes on each side, and no boobies," and the fair schemer laughed heartily at the success of her efforts to devise something new and startling in the way of summer amusement.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A Paris tailor who was eating his dinner during a thunderstorm heard a loud clap and saw the chimney board fall out and a globe of fire as big as a man come quietly out and move about the room a few feet above the floor. After moving slowly about, the ball went back into the chimney and there was a loud explosion, which shattered the chimney.

Lum Mohr opens the Lagrange street Road House Thursday, Oct. 20.

The life of a locomotive crankpin, which is almost the first thing about an engine to wear out, is 60,000 miles, and the life of a 33-inch wheel is 66,733 miles.

More Fun

At Lum Mohr's opening than anywhere else on earth.

An Australian pearl diver says that divers are always in bad temper when working at the bottom of the sea. It is supposed to be due to the heavy pressure of the condensed air the divers are forced to breathe.

Noblemen in scores were created by Christophe, a negro, who ruled as Emperor of Hayti from 1811 to 1820. Among the titles conferred were those of the Duke of Marmalade, the Count of Lemonade and the Earl of Brandy.

GREAT SMOKE CONSUMER.

It is very gratifying to the citizens of Toledo to know that the smoke consumer has not only been invented, but is now in actual use in our city, and to all those interested it will pay them to investigate the "Beckett" consumer that has been placed on the smoke stack at the Thompson & Chute Soap Co.'s, on Lafayette street.

This smoke stack has been known to be the worst of any in the city, there being positively no draft, so that they have been obliged to use steam blast to create a draft—but since putting in Beckett's Smoke Consumer the draft is good and the smoke is entirely consumed, no more smoke emitting than if they were burning gas. They have no trouble to keep up fire and a steady steam. The fireman and engineer are highly pleased, as are all who have seen its workings.

It is hoped that many of our factories will try this smoke consumer and do away with the dreaded smoke nuisance.

CLOSE OF THE RACES.

The Attendance Is Light But the Racing Good.

The Fall Meeting Not a Financial Success Though It Should Have Been—Excellent Events.

The managers of the Toledo exposition deserve much credit for the excellence of the fall meeting schedule presented this year to the Toledo public.

The Toledo public somehow does not seem to properly appreciate the good work of the company. The patronage throughout the meetings should have been much larger.

The races postponed from Saturday were finished yesterday. Charlie P. won the free-for-all trot easily.

THE BIG FOUR.

The Strike Situation is Anything but Satisfactory.

Cincinnati, Oct. 18.—The strike situation on the Big Four system is anything but satisfactory to the company. The switchmen now out at Columbus are liable to be joined by all the unions along the entire system. The Big Four people evidently expect the strike to extend, and have employed agents to secure new men.

KILLED WHILE AT WORK.

Malden, Mass., Oct. 18.—Late yesterday afternoon James Keating a lineman, 26 years of age, was at work on a pole containing electric light wires, when the power was turned on. The current passed through his body, killing him instantly. The body was suspended in mid air across the wires and the firemen had to be summoned to take it down.

THE GOOSE HANGS HIGH

So Far as Democratic Success Is Concerned.

Grover Cleveland Cannot Be Defeated.

The Empire State Will Do Its Duty and Victory Will Perch on the Democratic Banner.

New York, Oct. 18.—Election day is but three weeks away and still there is a dearth of that stirring political excitement that has always heretofore marked the closing month of a campaign at national headquarters. Generally there is a whirl of expectancy, the air is thick with rumors of roorbacks, the corridors of the hotels are blocked by excited men, the pool rooms swarm with betters, and the whole of New York is rocked with discussion and illumined with red fire.

This year all is changed. It does not seem to be the politicians' year. The people seem to be tired of brass bands and demonstrations. They know the candidates They know the issues. For four years they have been in the jury box, and for them the case is already closed.

Three weeks from to-morrow they will soberly and solemnly register their verdict in the great cause of the taxation which has been presented to them.

As the time draws near the battle is shaping up sharply on the old lines. I have talked with Chairman Harrity and Chairman Carter, with Gorman, Whitney, and Brice, who are really directing the democratic campaign, with Clarkson, who is the brains of the republican committee, and with most of the big toads and little toads in the political puddle here during the last few days, and a composite of the photographs of the situation which they have given me as well as my ownobservations convinces me that the result will hinge upon New York and Indiana, and that at this time Cleveland has the best of it in both the states which are to decide the contest.

The democrats also have "prospects" in the west and northwest. A scratch shot out there might give them the game if eastern calculations should make a slight slip. If the republicans miscue in Illinois, Iowa, or Wisconsin, or in Kansas and Minnesota, where the democrats have fused with the third party, and in addition lose New York, Cleveland will be elected either in the electoral college or in the house of representatives.

The republicans, on the contrary, have no such opportunities. Their battle is to prevent shrinkage. For a brief time they were inclined to bank upon the ravages of the third party in the south, and glorious-hued rainbows were chased in Alabama, North Carolina, Georgia and Tennessee, but since the third party received its awful drubbing in Georgia ten days ago they have abandoned Dixie, with the possible exceptions of West Virginia. Here they have a fighting chance, but the democrats have much the shrewder man at the head of their organization in that state, and Senator Gorman, who keeps especial tab on the two Virginias and Maryland, assures me that West Virginia will be democratic beyond peradventure.

There will be 444 votes in the electoral college, of which 223 will be necessary to a choice. Cleveland with the solid south, New Jersey and Connecticut starts with 175 votes under the new apportionment—within 48 of enough to win. The republicans start with 269, granting them all the new states they manufactured in addition to those carried by Harrison in 1888. From this number must be deducted Nevada (3) and Colorado (4), which will certainly vote for Weaver, leaving then 262. If Cleveland carries New York (36), and either Indiana (15), Illinois (24), Iowa (13), or Wisconsin (12)—or Illinois and Indiana without New York—he is elected. Or, if the democratic fusion tickets in Kansas (10) or Minnesota (9) should go through and the rest should be lost except New York, the election would fall to the present overwhelming democratic house. It will be seen that the republican situation is hedged about with pit-falls and dead falls out west, but the democratic managers are not basing any of their calculations of Cleveland's election upon the chance of the republican party tumbling into a hole out there and breaking its leg. They are letting the republicans fume and sweat though to keep these toppling states from falling out of the republican column. The democrats are cramped for resources and all their energy is being concentrated upon Indiana and New York. In these two states, as of yore, the death struggle will be fought.

Indiana is naturally a democratic state, though "boodle" sufficed to carry it, or rather buy it, for the republicans in 1880 and 1888. Since 1876, however, it has gone democratic two times out of three; in 1888 Dudley's "blocks of five" contrivance, backed by half a million dollars and Harrison's "popularity" at home, only secured for him 2,500 majority. Since then the doctrine of tariff reform has taken deep root in Indiana and in 1890 upon that issue the democrats carried the state by 16,000. "State pride" and "popularity" in Harrison will not cut much of a figure this year. The "boys" who braved everything short of the penitentiary for Harrison in 1888 and who got only kicks and cuffs for their pains are sulking in their corners now examining over and over again the marks of their bruises and wondering whether they really liked the sensation and would care to enjoy it again. McKinley protection has proved a sham in Indiana and Harrison's reciprocity a humbug. If the democrats can stop the use of the "manufacturer's grease" with which the republicans are so generously supplied they believe Indiana is safely democratic by 10,000 and upwards. In the Australian ballot law, enacted by the democratic legislature of Indiana, the democrats find a protection more effectual than that of the McKinley sort. This ballot law the party of the force bill and "honest elections" has vainly tried to overthrow. They wanted another chance with "soap" at the "blocks of five" game. About the only thing that worries the democrats in Indiana is the "soldier business." Indiana is a great soldier state and the warmed-over mess of bloody shirt potage seems still to be palatable out there. Secretary Sheerin, of the democratic committee, says if the republicans can find a way to use their money, Cleveland will have a larger majority in Indiana than he had in 1884 or than Tilden had in 1876.

And now as regards New York. I was surprised, indeed astonished, agreeably so I am happy to say, when I came here last week to find New York in such good trim for the democracy. I had had my misgivings about Hill and Tammany, as perhaps other democrats have, but from what I have seen I am satisfied that both are working honestly and earnestly for Mr. Cleveland's success. Most of the ugly wrinkles have been smoothed out of the local situation. Mr. Whitney and Mr. Gorman have with subtle and matchless tact brought the warring factions together.

Importers of Gems and Porcelains

The independent organization of "anti-snappers," headed by W. R. Grace, which threatened to disrupt the party in the state, and the domination of Tammany in this city has been quietly induced to lay down its arms. Grace has been brought into camp, and the idea of placing a municipal ticket in the field has been all but abandoned, although there still remains a prospect of a little trouble with the county democracy. Mr. Cleveland saw and consulted with Croker, Sheehan, Murphy and other leaders of the regular democratic Hill organization and the hatchet was buried. Senator Hill himself has not called upon Mr. Cleveland, and for this reason the republicans state that he is stabbing the ticket. But such is not the case. The two rival leaders understand each other perfectly, and public reconciliation and falling on each other's neck would merely mean stupification. What Hill will do in this campaign he will do as much for D. B. Hill as for Grover Cleveland. Hill is ambitious for 1896, and he knows he cannot sulk. He is sawing wood to build a fire to keep himself warm in the esteem of his fellow democrats in the future. The alternative is saw wood or freeze. To show how thoroughly the anti-Cleveland faction has been placated it is only necessary to point out that the entire campaign has been placed in their hands. It is the Hill organization everywhere that is in the saddle. McLaughlin in Brooklyn, Croker in New York, Sheehan at Buffalo, Hill at Albany and Murphy at Utica. Mr. Whitney and Mr. Gorman have here also shown masterly generalship. They have indeed the very men who fought his nomination to make themselves responsible for the state of New York. It forces their loyalty. It forces Hill and Tammany to vindicate to the satisfaction of the democracy of the country the power of their own organization. The fact that the Hill men are in command does not in any wise cool the ardor of those who were Mr. Cleveland's supporters before the Chicago convention, nor will it lower the large independent vote which Mr. Cleveland will get.

The tariff is the issue here in this state. The force bill is cutting some figure, but silver none. The "soldiers'" mongrel ow set up by the republicans is a failure because the people of New York, irrespective of party, know that Cleveland is for lower taxation and that he is a man to be trusted. He holds the most implicit confidence of the business men. "Bill" Hahn, the ex-chairman of the Ohio republican state committee, who is handling the sneakers at republican headquarters, told me that the republicans relied mainly upon the "general prosperity" of the country to give them victory. He talked glibly about the manufacture of tin plate and pearl buttons as he used to do out in Ohio during the Campbell-McKinley campaign last year and wound up his eulogy of the blessings of republican rule and republican tax laws by triumphantly pulling from his desk a roll containing the signatures of 100 manufacturers subscribing to the statement that they had enjoyed a greater degree of prosperity than they ever did before the McKinley law went into operation. He spoke of it proudly and exultingly and declared that such men didn't propose to give up a sure thing for the chance of "business disturbance." The signatures of the manufacturers were probably attached when they came to headquarters to submit to the "frying" process. It would be strange if such a document should aid Mr. Harrison's election, for a document showing that 100 manufacturers had increased their profits under the McKinley bill would doubtless furnish rich food for reflection for the 100,000 laboring men who have been reading about the increased wages they have not received.

In the state, outside of New York, where the republican majorities are, they are having uphill work.

Their organization is not strong and there are reports of disaffection in certain quarters. In Erie county (Buffalo), for instance, which Harrison carried in 1888 by 1,500, Warren, the old republican boss, is dead, and Forgbuar, one of the most powerful republicans in Buffalo, is disgruntled over the way Harrison turned him down. The democrats are united and Sheehan says Erie county will give Cleveland 2,500 majority. The apathy existing will naturally be felt most severely in the rural districts. In the democratic cities organization will get the vote out. Unless a radical change takes place or an immense amount of money is used it does not seem possible for Harrison to come to Harlem river with over 70,000, while the democrats estimate Cleveland's majority below Harlem at from 80,000 to 110,000. There are two weak points in the democratic armor; first, the possibility that the district Tammany leaders will be goaded into secretly knifing the ticket by the few anti-Tammany democrats, who still persist in sticking pins into the Tiger, and who cannot be controlled; and secondly, the immense corruption fund in the hands of the republican committee. If no local ticket is set up by October 25 all danger from the first is over. As regards the second the democrats have hardly enough money to pay the legitimate expenses of the campaign while the republicans are in possession of a fund closely approximating $2,000,000 which they will use for corrupt purposes if they can. The democratic secret ballot law will make it difficult for the republicans to corrupt the voters. It will not prevent them entirely as they can be bribed to stay away from the polls. Word has gone forth to the democratic workers to take all the republican money offered so that absenteeism from the polls is the only safe way for the republicans to use their money. The republicans will go to any lengths to secure the state. They make a game fight when they are on their backs and those democrats who are in the habit of backing their confidence with large wagers should bear this in mind. Nevertheless men like Gorman and Brin and other shrewd conservative democrats on the inside, who three weeks ago were rather downhearted are now almost enthusiastic in their predictions of success here. If the election were to come off next Tuesday instead of three weeks from that date I think the chances would be almost two to one in Cleveland's favor. But much may happen in three weeks. Don't put your money up too soon.
